THE CABOT CREOSOTE SHINGLE STAINS.

These stains produce that soft, artistic coloring effect so well adapted to houses of modern style of architecture, and which is now-a-days largely used. It may be of interest to know that Mr. A. H. Kensington, of Boston, who is preeminent among Eastern architects for the beauty of his seaside and mountain homes, is specifying these stains on all his work. They give effects that can be got in no other way, and blend harmoniously with the landscape, while they are durable and preserve the wood, calling only half the price of lead and oil. For sale in lots to suit.

The Advance Threshing Machinery.

The best and fastest thresher in America, and a machine that stands without a rival. The ADVANCE Thresher has NEVER been REPLACED by any other machine on the Coast, but has replaced several others that HAVE FAILED to fill WARRANTEE. Why get some OLD STYLE machine because it is cheap when you can get an ADVANCE on the start and do good work in any kind of grain. You do not have to cut and try with the ADVANCE, but start your power, then commence threshing at once. I take the liberty of referring you to the following part es owning ADVANCE Threshers (without their knowledge): Dr. H. A. Davis, Harrisburg, after wasting most of the season trying to run a cheap machine, bought an ADVANCE and averaged 2206 bushels per day. M. F. White & Co., Dixie, same experience, but after getting an ADVANCE averaged 2046 bushels per day. Knox Bros., Albany, with a little 28-inch machine averaged 1659½ bushels per day. Henry T. Bold, Spangle, writes, after trying a —— machine the best part of the season bought an ADVANCE. Was then able to run without a blacksmith and carpenter shop. The ENGINE is guaranteed to pull more than any other, and will outtravel all others on the road. If you hear any loud boasts, please tell the parties the ADVANCE THRESHER and ENGINE are sold on their merits entirely. And I am willing to prove all I claim in any field at any time. TEN THOUSAND DEAD

That Is a Conservative Estimate of the Loss of Life.

IT WILL PROBABLY BE GREATER

The Awful Work of Taking Out the Dead Bodies Goes on.

HOW THE RUINS ARE CLEARED

More Help is Needed by the Stricken City—Scores of People Sleeping in a Single Room—Disease Gaining a Foothold.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—The best estimates this morning on the loss of life, based on the registry of the living and an unofficial poll, are from 12,000 to 15,000.

In the midst of the scene of death and devastation, a relenting providence is exerting a subduing influence. The temperature remains low in the Conemaugh valley. Its benefit is inestimable, and should it continue a few days longer, it is possible that hundreds of bodies may yet be recovered in such a state of preservation as to render identification possible. Many hundreds of victims, however, will be roasted and charred into shapeless masses. The work of clearing up the wreck and recovering the bodies is being conducted systematically. Over 6000 men are at work, and as the rubbish is gone over and the bodies and articles of value recovered, the debris is piled up and the torch applied. In twenty-four hours every mass of rubbish will probably be searched, and all investigations will be confined to the smoking wreck above the bridge.

REGISTERING THE SAVED.

At the commissary station this morning 1500 people were fed and 200 families furnished with provisions. Five carloads of clothing were distributed. Now almost everyone is provided for. At the different registry places 8600 survivors of the devastated district are registered. The total population of this district was between 40,000 and 50,000. There were hundreds of people waiting around the offices to have their names placed on the list of saved. By to-morrow night 85 per cent. of the survivors will have been registered.

This morning 1100 men arrived in charge of Hon. William Flynn, and by 11 o'clock they succeeded in doing more work at clearing away the debris than has been done heretofore. Seventy-five carpenters and twenty carloads of provisions also came up. Another delegation of workmen came from Braddock, each man with tools prepared to go to work immediately.

THE AWFUL WORK PROGRESSING.

Men and Women Taken From the Ruins—The Loss Not Less Than 10,000.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5. — This afternoon fifty bodies were taken from the debris in front of the Catholic church at Johnstownborough, forty being those of women. The First Presbyterian church is being used as a morgue, and seventeen bodies have been taken from the debris and the river and brought in. The relief corps from Altoona found a body near Stoney bridge this morning. This corps took out thirty-two bodies from the ruins to-day. Five bodies were taken out of the wreckage near Nibertz bank this morning. Clara Barton, of the Red Cross Society, arrived this morning and went to work.

A TALE OF REBUILDING JOHNSTOWN.

Something like accuracy is being reached in the estimates of the loss of life. The conservative now put the number at 10,000. Nine hundred army tents have been distributed, and two white-walled villages now afford shelter to nearly 6000 homeless people. Talk of rebuilding the town has already begun, and it is thought the great Cambria Iron Works will be running again in thirty days, probably in two weeks. Hundreds of men are at work clearing away for this purpose.

ANOTHER CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE

Conservative men are of the opinion that the number of people destroyed will reach from 12,000 to 15,000. A very large portion of this loss is children. The general opinion is that fully 1500 bodies will never be found.

CLEARING THE RUINS.

Large Gangs of Men at Work on the Debris of the Wrecked City.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—Where Johnstown's principal stores stood last Friday, are now pitched 100 tents, and before to-morrow night this number will probably be doubled. Under this shelter are accommodated the members of the militia and the thousands of workmen who are trying to clean the streets of this wrecked city. Over 5000 men are thus employed in Johnstown proper, about 1500 of these being regular street hands, hired by contractors, and the others being volunteers.

William Flynn, a Pittsburg contractor, arrived in the wrecked city this morning, and at once took charge of the army of laborers. In an interview he told of the work that had to be done, and the contractor's estimates show more than anything else, the chaotic condition of the city.

"It will take ten thousand men thirty days to clear the ground so that the streets are passable and the work of rebuilding can be commenced," said he, "and I am at a loss to know how the work is to be done. This enthusiasm will soon die out, and the volunteers will want to return home. It would take all summer for my men alone to do what work is necessary. Steps must be taken, and that at once, to furnish gangs of workmen, and to-morrow I shall send a communication to the Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce, asking the different manufacturers of the Ohio valley to take turns for a month or so in furnishing relief forces of workmen. These gangs should come for a week at a time, as no organization can be effected if the men arrive and leave when they please."

The volunteers are doing a noble work. Nearly every town in Western Pennsylvania is represented by from ten to 100 men, and many towns in Ohio and New York also furnish their quota of laborers. These volunteers are working with a will, but before the end of a week they will want to return home. The men who come here will be paid $2 a day and board.

All of the laborers who have been toiling with the wreckage are quartered to-night, some in barns, others in the tents above referred to.

It was a scene as of army life, at time supper was ready to-night. The long pine tables were crowded with men. Coffee, bread and cheese was the fare to-night, but more substantial rations will be given out to-morrow.

As darkness drew the veil over the scene the valley became quite a city-scape being the ecclesiastical challenge of the militia man as he bade some belated individual obey the orders of the sheriff, and leave the city of the dead.

Johnstown is under martial law, and laborers only are wanted.

MORE HELP IS NEEDED.

The Response Has Been Generous but the Wants Are Many.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—Notwithstanding the fact that nearly every prominent city in the United States is raising a fund for the relief of the Conemaugh sufferers, the wants of the homeless and afflicted are far from being alleviated. At the various relief stations to-day the crowd of applicants was continuous from morning until night, and many of the needy were forced to wait in line for hours before their title came and their little portion was allotted them.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars must pour into this valley if positive suffering and privation is to be avoided. Thousands of people are homeless, and in this devastated region thousands also lost their all. Labor and manufacturing of nearly every kind is at a standstill in the valley, and weeks or months must elapse before the iron works and other industrial institutions can possibly resume and give employment to the thousands that depend upon them for support.

The mayor of Johnstown has received by cable a copy of the resolutions adopted at the public meeting to-day in Paris, France. The warm-hearted Parisians express their deep sympathy with the homeless and afflicted of Conemaugh valley, and subscriptions have been opened for the relief of their American neighbors.

THE SANITARY CONDITION.

Great Alarm Felt Concerning the Possible Future Ravages of Disease.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—As the days roll on and the heaps of debris are penetrated, it becomes more and more apparent that the death list will be more than 5000, and the general impression is that the victims will number between 9000 and 12,000. The deeper the wreckage is penetrated the greater the number discovered.

On Franklin avenue eleven were found to-day, and a few minutes afterwards twelve more were found.

Dr. Leeds, Pennsylvania state board of health representative, was to-day asked his opinion about the prospects of an epidemic in Conemaugh valley.

He said: "God only knows. No man living can tell what will come out of these piles of drift and wreckage. To-day we started a corps of sanitary inspectors into the thickest of the debris, and in a little while the bodies of fifty dead animals, mostly horses, were removed and hauled away for burial. If this per centage is kept up here, there is a fearful amount of decomposing animal matter to be removed or encountered. I have to-day ordered the surgeon general at Washington to forward unlimited quantities of disinfectants to Johnstown. There is more promise from up the mountain, and I hope to be able to have the whole city fortified inside of a few days."

A house-to-house canvass was ordered by the sanitary authorities to-day, and its revelations, so far as they went, were startling in the extreme. It was found that four, and even six, families were being crowded into a single house; that as high as fifty were sleeping in one room; that the doors and windows were left closed to shut out the stench and dampness; and that the resultant pneumonia, the existence of which was first discovered by an associated press correspondent, was gaining an alarming foothold.

It is estimated that there were at least one hundred well defined cases of the disease in Johnstown to-day.

THE CAUSE OF THE DISASTER.

Investigations of the Coroner's Jury on the Breaking of the Dam.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—The coroner's jury to-day proceeded to South Fork and investigated the cause of the breakage of the reservoir.

Witness testified that slight breaks had appeared in the dam several times in past years, but had each time been repaired with straw, sticks and rubbish.

The general impression is that the jury will declare that the Pittsburg Fishing Club, that owned the reservoir, was guilty of gross negligence. In that event, many suits for damages against this millionaire club will doubtless follow.

The question of accident and fire insurance is at present assuming large proportions here. The various insurance companies having policies in Johnstown are represented by agents in large numbers. E. E. Clapp, superintendent of the Fidelity and Casualty companies, and Adrian Scharff, their solicitor are in town. In speaking of the cause of their presence, Scharff said: "We have not a great many policies here, only 200, and the amount of insurance does not exceed $50,000. Our object in coming here was to aid the sufferers. We came armed with our draft book, and were ready to liquidate all claims at a moment's notice. We find, however, that affairs are in such shape that it is impossible to do anything. In many cases whole families are wiped out and the beneficiaries reside at such a distance that communication with them cannot be had at once, but money is practically valueless in this place at present, as far as securing commodities with it is concerned."

TOPOGRAPHY ABOUT JOHNSTOWN.

A San Franciscan's Description of the Situation of the Wrecked City.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—S. P. Johnston, of this city, a former resident of Johnstown, Pa., describes the situation of that city as lying at the junction of the Conemaugh river and Stony creek, or the south fork of the Conemaugh river.

On the south side of the river lay Woodville, Kernville and Morelville, populous suburbs, immediately below which the river is bound in a narrow gorge, with barely room for the track of the Pennsylvania railroad on one side and the county road on the other, following the line of the towpath of the old canal.

The gap, as it is termed, extends a distance of eight miles, below which the valley widens out, forming the location of the populous communities of Nineveh, New Florence and Bolivar.

Above Johnstown, some distance up Stony creek, was the dam which was owned by the Pittsburg Fishing Club.

The location was such that the pent up waters were confined in the narrow gorge and swept on with resistless force, the mountains rising precipitously on either side, giving no opportunity for the vast volume of water to spread.

The leading members of the liberal party gave a banquet Monday night to Tisza, the Hungarian prime minister. Their plant is the biggest in Newark, and the breweries and cooperage shops cover several blocks.

In a debate in the French chamber of deputies yesterday on the conversion of the Egypt an debt, Spuller, minister of foreign affairs, said the convention in order to be legal must be submitted to the powers for assent. Our conduct may differ according as we are treating with Egypt occupied by British forces, or as completely independent."

BORNE TO THE TOMB

The Hillsides Thronged by Funeral Processions.

SHALL THE DEBRIS BE BURNED?

Ghastly Scenes Enacted in the Improvised Morgues.

THE SITUATION AT OTHER TOWNS

Johnstown Is Not the Only Place Where Help Is Needed—Contributions Continue to Pour in From All Sections—Flood Notes.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—The grey mists had scarcely risen from the hills this morning until a thousand funeral processions were coursing their green sides. There were no hearses, few mourners, and as little solemnity as formality. Instead of six pall-bearers to one coffin, there were generally six coffins to one team. No minister of God was there to pronounce the last prayer, as the clods rattled down, except the few faithful priests, who had followed some mangled representatives of their faith to the grave.

All day long corpses were being hurried below the ground. The unidentified bodies were grouped on the high hill west of the doomed city, where one epitaph must do for all, and that the word "unknown." There are hundreds of these graves already, and each day will increase the proportion.

The possibility of identification diminishes every hour. Fires are raging over the tangled graves of hundreds, and the partial cremation of many bodies is inevitable.

Although the funerals of the morning relieved the morgues of their crush, before night they were as full of the dead as ever.

The enormity of the devastation wrought by the Conemaugh flood is becoming more and more apparent with every effort of the laborers to resolve order out of the chaos. Over a hundred men have been all day engaged in the effort to clear a narrow passage from the death bridge upwards through the sea of debris that blocks the Conemaugh for nearly half a mile.

Every ingenuity known to man has been resorted to by this crew. Giant powder and dynamite were brought in by the ton, and at frequent intervals the roar of explosions reverberated through the valley, and sticks, stones and logs would fly high in the air.

Gradually a few of the heaviest timbers were demolished and the river was temporarily permitted to flow downward through the central arch. At nightfall, however, the clear space above the bridge did not exceed an area sixty feet in length and forty feet in width.

When one reflects that fully twenty-five acres are to be cleared in this way, the task shead seems an interminable one. But there is no royal road, and if the hundreds or thousands of bodies beneath those blackened ruins are to be recovered for Christian burial, the labors of to-day must be continued with increased vigor.

There are many conservative minds that recommend the use of the torch in this work of cleansing the river, but they are not among the sufferers, and when such counsels are heard by those whose wives, children, sisters or brothers rest beneath the sea of flotsam and jetsam the suggestion of cremation meets with furious objection.

It is only in deference to the unreasoning mandate of grief that the tedious labor of clearing the river by means of dynamite and derricks is persisted in.

There is no hope in calm minds that this task can be pursued to the end. The progress of today is hardly discernible, and the two more days have elapsed there is little doubt but that emanations from the putrid bodies will have become so frightful as to drive the hardiest workman from the scene. Until that time arrives, however, there is no hope that the grief-stricken populace will abandon their cherished hope of again gazing upon the forms of the loved ones, whose lives went out in the fire and flood of Conemaugh. The pleadings of the sanitarians and the logic of the engineers alike, fail to find an echo in the minds of the grieving and afflicted, but in a few more days the sterner logic of nature will assert itself, and in the face of impossibility the task of cremation will become a Christian duty.

THE DAY'S GHASTLY WORK.

Awful Scenes Witnessed in the Improvised Morgues.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—Two hundred bodies were recovered from the ruins to-day. Some were identified, but the greater majority were not. The number included all of the morgues, at the Pennsylvania railroad station, the fourth ward school house at Cambria City, Morrowville and the Presbyterian church.

At the latter place a remarkable state of affairs exists. The first floor has been washed out completely, and the second, while submerged, was badly damaged. The walls, floors and pews were drenched, and mud has collected on the matting and carpets an inch deep. Walking is attended with much difficulty, and the undertakers and attendants, with arms bare, slide about the slippery surface at a premium.

The basement is filled with coffins, strips of muslin, boards and all the undertaking accessories. Lying across the tops of the pews are a dozen pine boxes, each containing a victim of the floods. Printed cards are tacked on each. Upon them the sex and a full description of the enclosed bodies is written, with the name, if known.

One of the most nauseating sights to those unaccustomed to scenes of death is the lunching arrangement for the undertakers. These men are working so hard and conscientiously that they have no time for meals, and huge bollers of steaming coffee, loaves of bread, dried beef and preserves are carried in the charnel houses to them, and placed at the disposal of the workmen. Along comes one weary toiler, his sleeves rolled up, a pron in front, and regardless of dust, despite the cold, damp weather. He has just finished washing a clammy corpse; has daubed it with cold water, manipulated it about on the boards, and in the interval, before the body of another poor wretch is brought in, gets a cup of coffee and sandwich. With dripping hands he eats his lunch with relish, setting his cup occasionally beside the hideous face of a decomposing corpse, and totally oblivious to his horrible surroundings.

At the Fourth ward school house, where most of the undertaking work is done, there was some slight trouble over the question of liquor. Rev. Mr. Beale, of the Presbyterian church, has charge of this morgue, and objected to the undertakers drinking whisky. Inasmuch as men, even with a cast iron constitution, could not work at anything in this place incessantly without stimulants, some of the undertakers protested against Beale's unreasonable prejudices, it is said, and threatened to cease attending bodies there. This had the effect of modifying Beale's temperance scruples.

AROUND HUNTINGTON.

Houses, Bridges and Railroads Swept Away, and Lives Lost.

HUNTINGTON, June 5.—Late news from the suburban districts of this county, just received, shows that the destruction to property by the flood is infinitely greater than at first reported. The waters are receding, and couriers have arrived bearing news of an unprecedented flood. From Bedford to Huntington, on the Rbystown branch, and on to Lewistown, on the Juniata river, the devastation is great in Central Pennsylvania, except, of course, Johnstown. Not a house is left that stood within reach of the swollen streams. Here the damage to property will reach $500,000, while other towns in the county have suffered correspondingly.

At Mapleton, the immense tannery of I. A. Roberts was damaged to the extent of $200,000, and the loss to other property will reach $100,000 more.

The Powell furnace at Saxton sustained a loss of $300,000, and at that place both railway bridges were swept away, leaving railroad communication with Bedford cut off.

For a distance of five miles below here four miles of the Pennsylvania tracks are destroyed, with bridges gone at Shanaynunk and Lewistown, the latter going down during a heavy storm last night.

Growing crops in the lowlands were destroyed, and Smith's valley, this county, farming lands, comprising an area of twelve by two miles, have been stripped of every vestige of soil.

So far as known 300 houses have been destroyed in this county. Three families, comprising sixteen people, living on the Rowstown branch, are missing, and it is feared have been swept away with their homes.

In these few hours the civil power recreated and asserted itself, and resumed sway, without the aid of counsel, from distant authorities but solely by and from the inherent power which remains in the people of Pennsylvania themselves

The difficulty which at present confronts the commission is that so long as the Indians remain here they must be fed and as long as they are fed they will endeavor to delay action When the rations stop, many of them will return to their farms, which are scattered over the reservation, some distant more than 100 miles

SWIFT RETRIBUTION.

Two Men Killed by Robbers in a Montana Town.

A PARTICULARLY ATROCIOUS CRIME

The Murderers Pursued by Angry Citizens and Killed After a Rapid Exchange of Shots—They Were After Bullion

HELENA, Mont, June 5.—The village of Silver, eight miles from Helena was the scene of a terrible tragedy this morning, four men being killed. The station house of the Montana Central railroad was broken into at 7 o clock by two men, who had been seen hanging about the premises the day before. A shipment of bullion from the Jay Gould mine was made yesterday afternoon, of which they were doubtless aware, and were after the rich prize. Usually this bullion remains over night at Silver junction, but last night it was brought right through to Helena

At the station at the time was Mr Burell a visiting telegraph operator from Great Falls The robbers opened fire with their rifles killing Burell instantly, and seriously wounding the agent F C Jobst who died at noon to day They shot them in bed without as much as asking Jobst to deliver up his treasure Jobst was shot under the right eye with a Winchester rifle Burell was shot in the back the ball penetrating the body He jumped through a window, carrying sash and all with him and ran toward the section house to give the alarm, but he never reached it. The assassin of Jobst shoved his murderous rifle through the window and shot Burell in the back, just as he was about to enter the section house The boy, for he was only a youth, dropped dead in his tracks.

The robbers then proceeded to go through the office and broke open the money drawer, where they found $20. All the money in the agent's hands was in an express envelope, ready for shipping by the next train This was left lying on the ticket counter The fellow who shot Burell must have rested his gun on the package

After ransacking the office the robbers took to the hills, starting off in a northeasterly direction and the foothills near Willow creek

Billy Johns as soon as he learned of the tragedy, organized a posse of ranchmen and started in pursuit of the murderers. A section hand who knew something about telegraphing carried the information to Helena, and sheriff Jeffries organized a force of twenty men armed with Winchester rifles, and reached Silver at 11 a

The Johns party overtook the murderers in a coulee about four miles east of Silver and attacked them The murderers refused to surrender They had covered themselves with sand and kept up an incessant fire with Winchesters upon the officers and their men It became evident that every hope to capture them alive must necessarily be abandoned and the outlaws found their punishment in swift death With a final charge the posse closed in and firing rapidly killed both the murderers fourteen shots penetrating their bodies None of the posse were injured

The second posse from Helena arrived at the scene just after the murderers had been killed

The bodies were shipped to Helena and are now in the morgue. They were evidently brothers The names of Julius J Asch and Robert Quade were found written on an envelope in the pockets of one of the murderers They were foolish robbers. The bullion is in bars of a hundred pounds and is sent in a steel safe with a lock

IN THE RING.

Chovnski Knocked Out by Corbett in the Twenty-seventh Round.

BENICIA, Cal June 5.—The fight between Jim Corbett and Joe Choynski which was interrupted by the sheriff last week was continued this morning on a barge off Dillon's point, near Benicia in the presence of about 200 spectators. Corbett wore two-ounce gloves but Choynski had been lost, and with Corbett's consent he wore skin tight driving gloves, with the understanding that Corbett could do the same when he chose

In the first two rounds no blows were struck, the men sparring for an opening

In the third round Choynski went down from a push blow in the mouth and Corbett drew first blood

In the fifth round Corbett smashed Choynski in the nose and mouth several times, and escaped without damage

In the sixth there was an even exchange of harmless blows.

The seventh round was a repetition of the fifth

In the eighth both men were cautious, and Corbett hit Joe in the mouth several times

In the ninth Corbett kept leading for Choynski's nose and mouth and scored a clear knock-down

Joe got wild in the tenth and Corbett smashed him in the nose some more, and his face was a terrible sight, and only the call of time saved him from a knock-out

In the next two rounds Choynski was fright fully punished, and could not gamely

In the fourteenth Choynski rushed and gave Corbett a black eye, but got severely punished in return

In the twenty fourth round Joe made a desperate rally, which Corbett saved by a clinch. He tried it again, but was stopped by several blows on the nose

In the twenty fifth round Jim chased his opponent around the ring and bunched him, hitting him at will, but not strong enough to knock him out.

In the twenty-seventh round Joe made a terrible rush, but Corbett clinched. Another rush and clinch was made, and Jim rushed Joe down Twice Jim smashed him, and Choynski fell unable to rise at the call of time Corbett was not badly punished.

WHEAT AND FLOUR.

A Concise Review of Shipments From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Receipts of both flour and wheat at San Francisco fell off materially in May This was expected, owing to the depletion of stocks which has been going on for months, coupled with the declining foreign markets. For the four weeks ending June 1st there were 357 387 quarter sacks of flour from interior mills, and 689 170 centals of wheat from interior warehouses. Shipments of flour and wheat for May were equivalent to 62,304 short tons, against 25,874 tons for the same month last year, and for the eleven months ending May 31, 1889, the total was 276 752 tons. Shipments for the current month will probably increase this amount to 800,000 tons for the cereal year of 1888-89

There is believed to be from 75 000 to 100 000 tons of 'old wheat yet in the state available for export The new crop, it is thought, will yield a surplus of 1,200 000 tons to export.

During the month of May seventeen vessels were cleared from this port with flour and wheat There was a full cargo of flour; two mixed cargoes, and fourteen straight cargoes of wheat. For the corresponding month last year there were only eight cargoes, against ten in 1887, The total for the three months of the cereal year is 268 against 180 in the previous year and 257 in 1886-87

The destinations of cargoes cleared in May are as follows Queenstown eight Hull and Sydney, each two and Galway Lynn and Barrow in Furness one each.

Clearances for eleven months were 16 to Queenstown, 80 to Liverpool 22 to other ports of Great Britain 36 to France, 1 to Belgium 1 to Australia, 3 to South America, 2 for Brazil, 3 for New York, and 1 for Hong Kong

Of the fifteen vessels which cleared for Great Britain from this port in May one accepted 27s 3d five 27s 6d one 27s 9d two 28 6d three, 28s 3d one, rest relatively 27s 6d 28s 9d and 41s 3d. One was loaded for account of the owners Two were loaded for 28 9d six at 29s 3d One of those at 27s 6d and 41 of those at 28s and upwards were chartered prior to arrival

It is only since September 1 1888, that vessels chartered prior to arrival have figured in the outward list and fleet and the number so reported to May 31, is seventy eight.

Of the thirty-one vessels in the engaged list in port on the 1st of June, seventeen were chartered prior to arrival, three of those have since been re chartered, including one at the same rate and two at a reduced rate.

Personal and General.

SAN FRANCISCO June 5.—Thomas McKnight, freight agent for the Oregon Pacific left to-day for Portland on business, and expects to be back next Monday

Robert Ewart, a ticket broker at Portland, arrived in this city with his wife to-day

Traffic by the daily evening train to Portland from this city is very heavy and there is a growing demand for a morning train In going over the mountains it is necessary to take the train leaving here in the evening In the two sections the putting on of an early train would obviate this double hauling and doubtless prove very convenient to many such passengers and travelers, at least, so say people who make the trip often.

A party of Raymond & Whitcomb excursionists left to-night for Portland. After visiting the Columbia river Tacoma, Seattle and Victoria, it will leave Tacoma for the East via the Yellowstone park June 18 Tuesday next the second annual Raymond & Whitcomb excursion to Alaska leaves here. The New Comet

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6—Edward S. Holden, director of the Lick observatory, telegraphed from Mount Hamilton as follows, "Mr. Barnard, of the Lick observatory, discovered on September 2, 1888, the comet which is now in the morning sky While observing the comet on June 3, at 3 A M, he noticed that the normal tail of the comet, which should be directed away from the sun had disappeared. An anomalous one, a degree long, was visible, however, directed toward the sun in the position of an angle of 30 degrees This is an interesting and somewhat rare phenomenon The explanation probably is that the comet is now so far past its perihelion that the sun is no more able to exert a force on the body sufficient to cause the formation of a tail of the usual type At the same time the comet is probably breaking up from the effects to which it has previously been subjected, and is leaving behind it fragments of its original mass, which will doubtless go to form a stream of meteors. These doubtless constitute the tail which has been observed

THE CRONIN INQUEST

An Attempt to Implicate Alexander Sullivan in the Murder

CHICAGO June 5.—The Cronin inquest was continued to day Patrick McGrary, a friend of Cronin's testified that Cronin told him that he expected to be killed for the part he took in the investigation at Buffalo and for the charges that Sullivan while a member of the executive board of the Clan used misappropriated a large amount of that Society's funds and sent men to their death and to British prisons to hide such misappropriations.

CHICAGO June 6.—Just before the inquest over Dr Cronin was resumed for to day the books of the Traders bank of Chicago were brought into the courtroom by order of Judge Shepard Byron Smith receiver of the bank, was present to explain their peculiarities in case Dr Cronin's check and ledger entries it was shown that in the summer of 1882 Alexander Sullivan had deposited $200,000 in the bank Of this money $20 000 and more was on individual accounts. The rest was credited to Alexander sullivan agent. By September 6, 1882, this money had been drawn out on checks made payable to J T Lester & Co. brokers

It is the intention of the coroner to summon a member of the firm to probe the matter further

Patrick McGarry Michael Barry, Maurice Morris and Joseph O'Byrne all members of the Clan na Gael and friends of Dr Cronin, gave testimony to the general effect that Dr Cronin had aided them at different times and that he expected Alexander sullivan to instigate some one to kill him After them were asked if they had ever heard threats against the doctor's life by Mr Sullivan and each replied in the negative.

Thomas J Conner a Clan na Gael man testified that he had overheard McGeehan the Philadelphian say that he had come West under orders from the executive committee of the Clan

At a meeting of Camp 24 Conner continued, resolutions regretting Cronin's death were opposed, because, perhaps, the executive committee had proof to show that Cronin was a British spy

SULLIVAN SAYS HIS ACCOUNTS ARE STRAIGHT

Alexander Sullivan's attention was called to the testimony of Receiver Smith this afternoon at the inquest.

Mr Sullivan said that there was nothing what ever in the Traders bank account which could not and would not be satisfactorily explained whenever any proper judicial proceedings required it At any time during the past six years he could have obtained and deposited the checks if he had so desired, but as there was nothing to conceal, anybody having any right to an explanation could get it and would do so at the proper time

A DETECTIVE'S ERROR.

A Piece of "Fine Work" That Culminated in Smoke.

AN INNOCENT MAN IN PRISON

All Because He Was So Unfortunate as Strongly to Resemble a Fugitive From Justice —His Innocence Proved.

TACOMA, W T., June 5.—A remarkable case of mistaken identity has just come to light here. On the 30th of last month John M Toyn a Canadian detective swore out a warrant for the arrest of W A Hedden of this place charging him with having defrauded life insurance companies out of over $14 000 He was arrested bail was fixed at $10 000, and at the request of the detective his examination was deferred for two weeks in order that additional evidence might be secured from Buffalo N Y., where the friends of the man had to have been summoned. He could not give bonds and was placed in jail where he has been ever since until to-day when he was released

Hedden was taken for Bryant A Crandall, who, in 1857 lived in Buffalo N Y and had an insurance on his life for $14 000. He went West and Artil of that year it was reported that he had committed suicide The facts concerning the alleged suicide were so well established that the insurance companies paid the full amount of the insurance money to the supposed dead man a reunion

In the fall of 1857 Crandall was seen in Los Angeles, Cal, by a prominent Buffalo man The latter reported the fact to the insurance companies They combined and offered a reward of $ 000 for the arrest of Crandall Detectives immediately began to hunt for him.

Detective Poyn got word that Crandall was here some months ago He came here and saw Hedden who resembled Crandall in a remarkable degree, got acquainted with him and went into partnership with him in the land locating agency, doing business all over the Sound country His hight, color of eyes, beard, size and weight exactly coincided with Crandall's On the latter's right foot was a scar over four inches in length the result of a wound accidentally inflicted upon himself with an ax when a young man In order to find whether Hedden had this scar Toyn proposed that they should rent a furnished room together and Hedden accepted the proposition That night when Hedden disrobed, the detective watched his roommate slowly pull off his socks, and sure enough there was a scar

The next day Toyn got out his warrant for Hedden, and was sure of his man

After Hedden was lodged in jail more positive evidence was needed from Buffalo and daily the wires were used to secure it Hedden's photograph was taken and sent to Buffalo, and word came back that it was the picture of Crandall

Hedden asserted his innocence daily said he owned a farm at Lakeview, near Rochester, N Y on which his family were living now and had come West like a good many others to make money

President Fitch, of the Traders bank of this city who was formerly of Rochester became interested in Hedden Mr Brock a prominent merchants of Buffalo who knew Crandall happened to arrive here on business He went to the jail at the request of Mr Fitch, to see Hedden, and said though Hedden resembled Crandall in a remarkable degree, he was not Crandall

Brock swore to his evidence but the detective was not satisfied The latter telegraphed to the chief of police of Buffalo asking if Brock's word could be believed The answer came back that his evidence could not be well disputed That settled the case in the minds of Hedden's friends

The same afternoon the counsel on both sides closely questioned Hedden asking him fifty or more questions They then telegraphed to the postmaster at Lakeview, Hedden's alleged home, and asked him to telegraph the same very same questions that they had put to Hedden.

This afternoon, when the prisoner and his counsel the detective and his counsel were all in the courtroom the answer from the Lakeview post master was received His answer to each question exactly corresponded with those given by Hedden And when the long telegram was finished Mr Payn, the detective and his counsel gave up the case and acknowledged that Hedden was no the long lost Crandall.

Mr Hedden was congratulated on the result. He did not seem very much pleased with his experience in the 'cooler' He claims that his name was kept from him while in jail that the detectives went through his valise and robbed him of $5, and that he was not allowed to see anybody He will sue for damages

CHEHALIS NEWS.

A Second Opera House—Flumes From the Newaukum River—Kinsalie Mill To Be Rebuilt.

CHEHALIS June 5.—J S. Nealy was brought here from Winlock yesterday on a charge of assault The offense was committed while Nealy was under the influence of liquor When sober he is a good citizen and a little punishment may impress upon him the fact that it is best to stay sober

Mrs. Barrett let the contract yesterday for the new opera house which she will erect immediately The lower story will be fitted up for stores and the remainder of the house devoted entirely to the accommodation of shows. Chehalis now has an opera house capable of seating 600 people with a twenty four-foot stage fine drop curtains and good scenery, in fact, said to be a better house than Tacoma has. The town must be prosperous to make two such houses profitable.

A project is now being worked up to build a 'V flume from the Newaukum river to Chehalis, which will supply water for power and float logs and shingle bolts to mills here An Eastern capitalist has carefully examined the situation says the project is a good one, and will take half the stock A number of Chehalis citizens have offered to subscribe and it is quite probable the work will be undertaken within a month.

At least one property owner has awakened to a sense of duty Mr West will immediately erect a number of good tenement houses. Families are arriving every day and not a vacant house in town although a dozen or more are being built for rent.

The Kinsalie fire was a hard blow to many people. There was no such combustible material in and around the mill that within thirty minutes from the first alarm all was in ruins. An eyewitness says the flames seemed to burst out as if a charge of powder had been fired. The men working in the mill lost all their clothing and personal effects which were in the bank house close by, and the mess room, blacksmith shop and dry house, with all their contents, were destroyed The work of rebuilding the mill was commenced before the burned machinery was cool and twelve hours after the fire Mr D G Ainslie was in Portland after new machinery

Members of the G A R. and their friends will hold a reunion and camp fire at the new Newaukum bridge Friday next.

A Large Elevator To Be Built at the Falls.

HELENA, Mont., June 5.—The tour ists who make annua jaunts about the country will be more numerous this season at the Yellowstone Park than ever before in its history, or since the building of the Northern Pacific into Montana.

Appropriations of $50,000 by the government for improvements will be met on the part o the Northern Pacific and the Park Association by an equally generous expenditure

Colonel D B May who has a contract with the Park association, has completed his novel scheme to place an elevator at the Yellowstone Falls to enable tourists to descend from the brink of the falls to the bank of the canyon. He has a permit from the government. The cage of the elevator will be large enough to accommodate about fifteen people It will be operated by 82 horse power engine and will cover a distance of about 350 feet, and is a very unique and useful contrivance

The tourists will go down over the falls there securing a view of the grandest sight to be found in Wonderland.

MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

The Verdict in the Roberts Case, at Butte, Mont.

BUTTE, June 5.—The defense in the Roberts murder trial continued its effort to prove the defendant insane, but with little success. The court held an evening session to finish the case. The defendant's lawyer dwelt strongly on the virtues of the defendant as a soldier. But one ballot was taken and every juror voted for conviction.

At 8:30 Judge Dewolf took his seat and the jury and defendant were brought into the court room. Roberts listened to the verdict, "Guilty of murder in the first degree with the utmost composure and did not change countenance When it was over he rose and left the courtroom with a firm step without speaking a word His attorneys will move for a new trial This is another example of swift justice in the courts of Butte.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, JUNE 6.

WATER FOR ARID LANDS.

In Middle Oregon there is an area of 25,000 square miles where scarcity of water retards settlement and cultivation. This great extent of country is not, indeed, wholly without water, since it has some living streams, and at very many places a supply for part of the year. But on the whole, water is scarce, and to this scarcity, chiefly, is due the fact that the country has not settled more rapidly. Throughout a large part of this great extent of country there is a good soil, and one of the problems of the future will be the obtainment for that region of a water supply.

A senate committee to investigate the subject of water supply for the arid lands of the country will visit the Northwest in August or September next. In this subject the large portions of Oregon and Washington lying east of the Cascade mountains have special interest. The question is, will the government undertake to solve this problem of water supply, and if so, what means should be employed to solve it?

The first thing necessary will be a careful system of investigation and experiment. In some localities it is probable that water can be had in ample supply by boring; in others the necessary expedient will be that of storing up water in a system of reservoirs, or construction of canals to carry water from living streams.

In very many places the precipitation is sufficient to give a good supply, if preparation is made to collect and hold it. Without such preparation the nature of the soil is such that the water quickly disappears.

The British government in India, and the French government in Algiers, are maintaining and extending vast systems of this kind. The irrigated area of India is very large, and the system has been pursued for centuries; in Algiers the French are converting a hitherto barren country, of large extent, into a productive region.

Should the United States be unwilling to enter upon a work of this kind the land itself could be made to furnish and support a system of irrigation; that is, the land could be granted to those who would organize and maintain a system of water supply. To get the best and fullest results great capital would be required, but the land could be bonded for the money and the income would remain the water service. The time is not distant when it will become necessary to make the most of the lands in the arid districts, for the public domain will soon be narrowed down to close limits and the pressure for lands will require measures to be taken for reclamation of the districts hitherto neglected on account of the deficiency of water.

A STAIN UPON IRISH NATIONALISM.

The New York World regards the murder of Dr. Cronin as an event that will do more than anything else has done to discredit, throughout the world, the cause of Irish nationalism in the United States. There is no doubt of the truth of this estimate. It may be, indeed, that this crime has no connection with Irish political affairs, and that it is the work, as hundreds of other murders are, of individual malice or hatred; but it is connected, in the mind of the public, with the mysteries, real or supposed, of an oath-bound society working in the cause of Irish nationality, and nothing short of a clearing up of the mystery surrounding the murder, in a way that will fix the crime unmistakably in a different quarter, will remove the stigma. Unfortunately the prospect for this is not yet such as greatly to encourage the friends of the cause, who scorn to work out a noble end through corrupt and criminal methods. In the first place, the murder was evidently the work of conspirators. There is that in the cunning with which its plans were laid, and the craft and secrecy with which they were executed, which hints strongly of the patronage, if not dictation, of a secret society that arrogates to itself the power of life and death. It is declared that there were thefts from a patriotic fund of which Dr. Cronin was cognizant; and the conclusion that this knowledge made his murder necessary, in order that those who stole the money might be screened, is strengthened by the fact that the same men are suspected, and in a degree, at least, implicated in both crimes.

This is not the first instance in which a worthy cause has been sorely wounded by its professed friends. The unprincipled zealot is indeed the bitterest enemy against which any reform has to contend, and the certain championship of men of this class has kept hundreds of radical thinkers in conservative lines upon every issue that humanity has ever forced in the name of "reform." Intemperance has gained its greatest victories through the misguided zeal of its opponents, and slavery was enabled for years to bid defiance to the mandates of justice and humanity—through the ill-considered blows of its impolitic adversaries; the cause of equal rights and its special feature—woman suffrage—received a staggering blow from the unfortunate championship of Victoria Woodhull, and Christianity itself has been stabbed more or less vitally through the intolerance of the creeds that essay to guard it.

The cause of Irish home rule has suffered its full measure through the treachery and crime of the unworthy sons of Ireland, and losses that it could ill afford have resulted. Those who recognized in its demands principles of liberty, and demands for justice that are worthy of all honor earnestly hope that the assassins of Dr. Cronin will be brought to justice and cordially endorse the sentiment that declares that the "truest Irishman is he who will help in their capture, in the interest of vindicating the good name of his race."

A man named Royall in South Carolina announces that he intends to offer himself as a candidate for congress on a platform that proposes repeal of negro suffrage. Mr. Royall, if elected, will offer in congress a resolution to submit to the states an amendment to the constitution to this effect. But the Charleston News and Courier tells him he never can be elected to congress from South Carolina on this platform and gives this reason, to-wit:

Whether they vote or not, the negroes make good counters, and give the southern states a voice in the electoral college and congress which they could not enjoy if the negroes were disfranchised.

This, the New York Tribune remarks, is so delightfully frank that comment is unnecessary.

Elijah Smith retorts very sharply upon Henry Villard. With adroitness and skill Elijah explodes some wicked little torpedoes under Henry's hide. It is not surprising that men who have dealt together in Wall street should have tales to tell of each other's shortcomings. The allusion to "the frightful wrecks that Mr. Villard left in 1883," and to the efforts that have been made "to save something for his victims," will be feelingly appreciated on both watersheds of the continent.

That somewhat mythical individual a "reliable congressman" is quoted by a Washington correspondent as authority for the statement that the president will convene congress in October, in order to get the fair Question settled early. When we remember that the democratic house labored five years months in this direction without results, succeeded by the republican senate in seven modest but equally futile endeavors, we do not find anything especially seductive in this promise of an early settlement of the tariff question, even when backed by the veracity of a congressman. If the question is disposed of satisfactorily this term, the president may well congratulate himself upon the phenomenal success of his administration.

It was the case with Oregon as with other new states that 5 per cent. of all land sales were returned to the state; so newspapers are figuring as to the sum to be paid Washington if this rule shall apply there, as no doubt it will. One dollar in twenty on all land sales will be a fund worth having, for there have been many sales under various acts. The aggregate must be up in six or seven figures and the 5 per cent. will do the state much good if properly used. One of our secretaries of state pocketed $14,000 of 5 per cents, and poor old Jesse Applegate, as also Dowell, of Jackson, who went his security, had to make the defalcation good.

The Samoans will think that the tempest that was so hard on the Americans was a godsend to them when they learn of the success of negotiations at Berlin. Really, those islanders have found a soft corner in English and American hearts, and it is pleasant to see the result of the conference so favorable to them. They can now go on with their affairs in peace and comfort and will be more than ever disposed to pin their faith to American friendship. They have been anxiously awaiting the result of the conference, no doubt, and as soon as the good news reaches them they will have a good time generally. They believed that the loss of warships would work in their favor.

A lady who had just arrived from the South at a hotel in this city was telling a friend with infinite disgust how hard it rained all the way through the state of California, and how fine the sunshine made things look as soon as they crossed the Oregon line. The traveller had no idea, probably, that Californians were exuberant with joy over the falling showers, and made hopeful because the rain fell. She saw only gloomy skies and damp earth. It was a great joke with her to see the traditional legend of rain and shine reversed as regarded Oregon and California.

Practical humanity has never had on this continent a greater or more urgent task in hand than that to which it is now applying itself so heroically at Johnstown. The work of relief has been as thoroughly systematized, and is as carefully guarded from misfortune as possible in the great and abounding distress that calls for alleviation on every side, and the offerings of generosity are pouring into the hands ready to receive and distribute them. All that sympathy and money practically applied can do to repair the damages of disaster is being done in this instance, and the work of relief will continue as long as the need for it exists.

The present law of Indiana allows parties to have as few men on a jury as they please. One man will do, if they can agree on him. This is getting rid of a great deal that was objectionable in the jury law, and if it works well there, we may expect to see it introduced elsewhere. In time they may do away even with one juror and have courts based on a principle of arbitration. Justice is something the world has tried to compass for thousands of years and it has often been true that the more justice a man paid for the less he got.

The number of patriotic citizens who, being fully persuaded that the government was in danger and rushed to Washington to offer their services in its behalf, for a salary consideration, has been greatly diminished by the advance of the hot weather. They will probably seek some sylvan retreat where board is cheap and hay mows plenty during the summer months and, with their sincere desire to aid the country undiminished, return to Washington in the fall. The political patriot knows no such word as discouragement.

Harrowing tales are told by the democratic press of the removal of multitudes of democrats from office by the present administration. How it may be elsewhere we don't know, but the guillotine in Oregon is rusty and idle. The only blood on it is the dried gore of the old executions under Cleveland. By the way, since it is said that democrats in vast numbers are being turned out of office, one can only wonder how such multitudes of democrats got into office. Possibly some republicans were removed.

The laws, resolutions and memorials enacted or adopted by the legislative assembly of Oregon at the late session have been printed and bound. The result is a volume of nearly 800 pages and a conviction on the part of the person who takes it up that Oregon is governed too much. There have been some complaints that the book has not appeared sooner, but when its bulk is taken into consideration, it must be admitted that the state printer has done fairly well.

The Baltimore American's estimate of the present administration is short, simple and to the point. After speaking of the efforts of Washington correspondents to discover trouble between cabinet officers, that journal says: "This is not the kind of administration for quarrels and bickerings. If it is one thing it is harmonious, and has been from the beginning. Where there is harmony, there is also work, and plenty of it."

Wiggins takes the present opportunity to come cheerfully to the front with a prediction that Philadelphia will be destroyed by an earthquake in 1904. Pennsylvanians have about all that they can attend to in the way of present disaster without growing nervous before a prophecy of this sort, and from this source just now.

From all accounts, the town of Guthrie, in the new territory of Oklahoma, is not a much more agreeable place to live in than the Chicago insane asylum. It is, in fact, about as much as a squatter's life is worth to attempt to hold on to his "lot" in that city of great expectations.

Quotations of O. R. & N. in New York show great advances during the last few days. This fact is some indication that the report of the amicable arrangement telegraphed yesterday may be well founded.

A Change Comes Over Him.

Rochester Post-Express, (Ind.)

There is no doubt that Mr. Cleveland at one time attributed his political success less to the democratic party than to political forces outside of it, and entertained, if he did not deliberately plan, a scheme to seek for renomination on his non-partisan record. But he comes forward now as an old-fashioned, unterrified, rock-ribbed, moss-backed democrat. He is a partisan from Waybeck. To the democracy of this country his speech may be interpreted briefly: "You hear me a shoutin'?"

Democratic Plutocracy.

New York World, (Dem.)

Senator Henry B. Payne, of Ohio, again reiterates his determination not to be a candidate for the United States senate. The legislature which will choose his successor will be elected this year. Calvin S. Brice and several other rich men are bidding for the seat, and the supposition is that democratic holdings in the legislature will be regarded as of some value.

What Makes You Hiss?

NOTE AND COMMENT.

A few weeks ago mention was made of the arrival at Salem of a company of immigrants who were gathered in Pennsylvania by Rev. Mr. Stayer, agent of the Oregon Land Company. These people are now in mourning for their friends and neighbors, while they are rejoicing at their own deliverance. They came from Johnstown, Pa., and had they not left as they did many of them would no doubt have been included in the terrible disaster that so recently overwhelmed that unfortunate valley. It is singular how such things come home to us, for when we imagine that we individually have no interest in seven some incident arises to connect us with them and give special interest.

The various timber land filings made in the newspapers show that nearly of the applications to purchase timber lands are made by women. This was first noticed by the Astorian, which paper mentions it with the note that any woman, married or single, can locate 160 acres of timber land the same as any man can. The only stipulation is that she must purchase the land with her own money. That is easily enough managed, for when she is given money to use as she pleases it is here to all intents and purposes. This is as it should be, for women are entitled to rights and privileges as well as men, and the intention has always been when endowing man with privileges to have him represent the family. It is all right for women to have the same rights as men, as was done by the Oregon donation land law.

The swine and bear belong to the same family, in a measure, and a Minnesota man has undertaken to grow bears as he does hogs. Bear meat sells higher than pork and bear skins sell well, so he makes the critters pay a profit. How he gets the bears is not told, but he has a bear ranch where they propagate and are fed corn meal until they get in prime condition. Here is an idea for our mountaineers. They can get a start of bears and go into business on a scale somewhere between civilized hog fattening and savage bear hunting. How to feed them is solved, as they will do about as pigs do, but they beat a pig all hollow at climbing, and how to fence them in is a question. "What man has done man can do," so our Oregonians can start bear ranches as well as anybody.

The women suffragists and prohibitionists of Washington would like to put a millstone to the constitution to be framed there and let it take its chance of defeat. They insist that as submitted to the people it shall contain radical measures that will enlist a great deal of opposition. If they would be reasonable and leave these measures for future consideration, the instrument could be easily framed and its safety guaranteed. To load it down with such debatable features will cause great disturbance in the convention and still greater at the polls. If these points could be suppressed, and left to be still right. When the state is in running order, all such questions can be submitted at popular elections and will be subject to the popular will.

The Democratic Times says the citizens there have been very liberal towards the Jackson County Agricultural Society, and the use of the county grounds will be tendered to the Southern Oregon District Agricultural Society, should they conclude to hold a fair there. In this matter it looks as though Southern Oregon and Jackson county could work together, at least for the present season, to hold an good and attractive a fair as the district can manage to get up. It may be good policy to alternate in holding district fairs, but it is probable that Jackson county can lead off to good advantage and the other counties will have an incentive to equal what Jackson has done. If the Southern Oregon Association is well managed it will be productive of much good and create a higher interest in agriculture in all the southern counties.

People do not generally know that James G. Blaine, of Maine, has a brother, or rather, a half-brother, living here in Oregon. M. G. Lane, better known as Professor Lane, has for many years been a teacher in Salem schools, and is very popular with directors and scholars. He has always been an ardent republican, and never an office-seeker. Republicans at the capital say that he believes there is truth in the old adage that "a good thing is thicker than water," wonder sometimes if the secretary of state will not look for some good place in the government service to suit this near relative. The professor is a capable man, though he lacks the ambition and aggressive qualities that distinguish his renowned brother. He can only fill any ordinary position and deserves remembrance in that way quite as much as many who are successful.

Macready was a charming companion and while he had wonderful talent he disliked the influence of the stage and never wished his own family to see the theater. Over forty years ago, before the time of railroads and telegraphs, a party casually met, were staging in the lake country of New York, and without actually knowing each others' names planned to spend a week in company. The chief attraction was a middle-aged man whose charming companionship and varied accomplishments made the connecting the. It was a week of delightful summer travel. The accomplished gentleman was Macready and his most attached friend and admirer was a clergyman of Calvinistic mold. When the week was over and good-byes said, the clergyman had lost much of his "good shell." The youngest of the party was a nurse lad who has always treasured a living regard for Macready.

A little incident that occurred at the obsequies of the late Justice Stanley Mathews, of the supreme court, is attributed to President Harrison and speaks eloquently of his regard for the deceased and the charm of his own sociality. A beautiful design of flowers bore this sentiment: "Say not 'Good-Night,' but in some brighter clime Bid me 'Good Morning.'"

These beautiful lines by Mrs. Barbauld were said to be a favorite sentiment with Macready, the great actor, and they were recited at his funeral. The quotation is:

Life! we've been long together
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear!
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time;
Say not 'Good night,' but in some brighter clime
Bid me 'Good morning.'

We never know the tribulations and trials even corporations undergo unless we happen to stumble on some secret source of information. Governor Pennoyer on Monday morning received through the United States mails a handsomely printed circular that gave him the valuable information that all other interests were represented by Boards of Trade and were able to present their claims to legislatures by means of said boards and could command attention and respect, but, while other interests were thus protected and defended the railroads of the country had no such advocates to befriend them. "The undersigned" drew a pitiful picture of the suffering condition of these unprotected corporations and appealed to the governor for aid and assistance—even for kindly suggestions for some way to accomplish relief and succor for these innocents abroad. It is not known exactly what reason his excellency suggested, but his interest was aroused as his private secretary heard him ejaculate, "Oh h—allfax" and it is supposed that he informed the writer that he had done his official duty in the premises as between himself and the Oregon legislature. Oregon has a surplus of railroad commissioners who will see that railroads in this jurisdiction come to no harm.

The Salem Statesman says a change has occurred in bank matters there. The First National is an institution of considerable importance that was founded by William Stuart, of Scotland. The old gentleman used to come over land and ocean to look after his interests in Oregon, for he also had a small fortune invested in the Capitol Mills. He died about a year ago and the estate shows $100,000 invested in those mills, with half as much more in the bank building and bank stock. His interests in bank stock and buildings have been purchased by the directors. The bank is now owned entirely by Salem people and the intention is to confine the stock to Salem and make the bank entirely a home institution. Mr. Stuart was advanced in years but very vigorous for all his white hairs. He no doubt felt a peculiar interest in Oregon from facts of family history, as the two Stuarts who formed part of the Astor company when it located at Astoria—David and Robert—were his uncles. Those who have read Irving's works will recognize them as important characters in that expedition. Three-quarters of a century later their nephew invested his means in this same country. Mr. Ladue, manager of the bank, is also of Scotch descent, though he wears the G. A. R. badge as a veteran. Mrs. Ladue is granddaughter of Robert Stuart, of that time, so the bank has not lost connection entirely with the old historic family.

Five or six years ago a car of the United States Fish Commission left a full load of shad in the Sacramento river—though why these fish were not left in the more congenial waters of the Columbia is a question. The fish did well, and showed uncommon fish sense by pushing their way northward. Two years afterward the advance guard made their appearance in our river and now we have reason to suppose that the greater portion of them are domiciled in the Columbia waters. About two years ago a fish car came here that had a remainder of young shad on board—not any large quantity—and those were put into our river, but already shad had been caught at the mouth of the Columbia, and the only conclusion could be that they had worked their way north from the Sacramento. This spring shad are so abundant in the Columbia that they form a distinct article of trade. There is no reason to suppose that the fish put into the Columbia two years ago have been caught yet, and yet the shad are so abundant that the traps catch lots of them, in fact more than there is actual demand for. Salmon and shad prefer the Columbia river because its waters come from melting snows in the mountains and furnish an excellent article of fish food. So the shad are forming a habitat for the Columbia and abandoning the Sacramento. They don't even take to the intervening streams. We are now eating the original shad put in the Sacramento years ago. It is a question whether the supply will continue until fish propagate, or be exhausted as the original stock is caught and thus destroyed.

The Dalles Mountaineer says: "It is generally conceded by railroad companies, who are keen to discern the signs of the times, that Oregon and Washington are central figures of national observation. The available lands of all states east of the continental divide are nearly occupied, and thousands who are seeking new homes are attracted by the delightful climate of the Pacific. The remarkable fertility of the soil and success of crops is fully attained by the harvests that have been gathered here for successive seasons, and this fact, combined with climatic advantages, is sure to attract the multitude who are able to change their homes to realize their benefits. The day of our prosperity and growth has only dawned, and it is only necessary that different portions of the state take reasonable pains to make their several advantages known to secure all the benefits that immigration can give. It is especially necessary to make known the fact that manufacturing can be carried on here with the natural power of many mountain streams, and attract immense iron interests by making known that all material for iron and steel manufacture can be found on the Columbia below Portland. Our soil, supplemented by such forests, by iron, coal, lime, gold, silver, cinnabar, lead, copper, tin, and every resource nature can bestow, should invite capital and people in vast numbers, and soon make this one of the most favored spots on the face of nature."

Thomas Man Causes the Arrest of His Runaway Wife.

Boy Gymnasts Create a Scene — Result of Mr Buchanan — Dangerous Boating at Fisher's Landing.

CHINESE CHINAMAN.—About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a cadaverous-looking Chinaman collided with a countryman about him on Second street, between Washington and Alder, by going through some pantomimic performance with a stick sharpened at both ends. He attempted to perform in those lines with the wooden weapon, but was prevented from doing so by several brother Celestials, who summoned and asked to have Officer Martin warned for, from all appearances the Chinaman was dangerous. While the officer went for an extra club the Chinaman lugged a bar from the nearest building for protection. It was a scene on the sidewalk for a few minutes, and the officer had considerable difficulty that he was placed in the police patrol and afterwards conducted to a cell in the city jail. From other Chinamen it was learned that his name was Ah Chung. He has been in this country for, from all appearances, three years in the mines near Umatilla. For the past three or four months has been employed by the Chinese Company in this city. Two days ago he came to the city and yesterday threatened to kill those with whom he had previously had trouble. Judge Caplin adjudged him insane and committed him to the asylum to-day.

ARRESTED IN TACOMA.—A man giving his name as E. R. Beede, arrived on the Northern Pacific train from Tacoma yesterday morning in charge of his runaway wife who he claimed had left him with a sewing machine agent from her home. Officer Gallin found the woman and her companion in a lodging house on Third and B streets. The woman was found sitting in front of the International hotel and he was taken to the police station. He gave his name as Harry Wilcox. His true name is believed to be Beede. He was booked on a charge of insanity. He will remain only a week ago alone, while William only left that ample lady, at her home in this city. Mrs. Buchanan died Tuesday noon the immediate cause of her death being uraemic coma. She is one of the pioneer women of Oregon. She came to Portland with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Wade Hamilton, in 1853, and has resided here ever since. She was a native of Illinois, and was born November 25, 1837. On December 25, 1857, she was married in marriage to Captain D. E. Buchanan, a well-known steamboat man. She was a devoted wife and mother, and a large circle of friends mourn her sudden departure from the family residence to-day. The funeral will take place from the family residence to-day.

BEEN THERE STANTATION.—Lincoln Parker arrived in this city last evening and reported to Coroner Sargent the discovery of the remains of a man on the Columbia River, between the seven and eight mile stations last Saturday says the Astorian. The body was badly decomposed that it was impossible to identify it in any way. In the pockets of the deceased was found a knife, a bunch of matches, a pipe, a pair of spectacles and from appearances is supposed that the unfortunate man was lost from a canoe and perished from exposure and starvation. Coroner Sargent directed that the remains be buried where found.

BEEN ELEVENTH No FIRE.—The loud and prolonged blowing of steam whistles at 8 45 o'clock last night by river crafts, attracted most of the people to the river front. Every one expected to see a large dock on fire. The attention of those attracted to the front of Stark street was at once directed to sparks coming from a chimney and a few flames through windows in Druck's machine shop. Reasons turned in an alarm, which brought the department to the scene. It was found that the cause of all the excitement was a small workmen carelessly left a forge. Everybody who had rushed to the scene retired greatly disgusted.

BEATEN BLASING.—A gentleman named G. Edgar who has occasion to pass the place above Fisher's Landing, on what is known as the river road to La Camas called at this office last evening and complained that the blasting done at the place above mentioned is very dangerous to passers by. He said that on several occasions rocks came by the place he narrowly escaped being killed by flying debris from the blasts. If this is the case, the parties doing the blasting should have men stationed in the roadway which is public, to warn all passers whenever a blast is to be set off.

A BOY-BLOWER'S OUTFIT.—Officer Holmberg arrested one Tom Reagan at a late hour last night for lodging on Front street between Alder and Morrison. When Reagan was searched at the police station, several burglar's drills and a powder-horn were found on his person. The talk looked as if they had performed recent service. While there is no doubt but what Reagan is a blower of the first water, he can be arrested for no such charge. In other states the mere possession of burglars' tools constitutes a police crime.

RUNAWAY RUNNING ALONG THE STREET.—Those on the front on Washington street at 2 P M yesterday were treated to a lively runaway. Two horses attached to a wagon loaded with sawed cordwood, became frightened at a steamboat whistle and started up Washington street from Front at a terrific gait. Everybody gave the runaways a wide berth. Eastwood was thrown all along Washington street from the starting point to the West End of the city.

RECORD OF OFFICERS.—The following officers were elected by Hope lodge, No. 1, A O U W last evening, E. H. Schuldermann M W Palmer Eastman Joseph Delay overseer Henry Holman, recorder W L. Holt, R. H. Wood.

HAD YOUR COMPLAINTS.—It was stated yesterday that if any one, annoyed by the drunken antics in the house on Seventh street near Morrison, is willing to make complaint, the grand jury will be ready and willing to listen to the story and take such action as may seem proper. The grand jury desire to make an investigation if they also suffer by living in close proximity to the house. An expression will make their complaints known.

TELEPHONE WORK ON SUNDAY.—Postmaster Allen, of this city, has received one of the circular letters sent to the postoffices of the 100 largest cities in the Union by Postmaster General Wanamaker. The object is to reduce the amount of mail done on Sunday, and Postmaster Roby is asked to furnish facts and figures of the amount of business done on that day as compared with other days of the week.

ATTRACTIVE ATTENTION.—There is on exhibition in Woodard Clarke & Co.'s window a fine picture of the Bishop Scott Academy building, unique in its character exhibiting exterior and interior views of the school, the boys on the campus, etc. Portlanders may well feel proud of possessing an educational institution of this character. The photos are from the Imperial gallery.

MISS PEEK'S EXHIBITION.—Miss Mystic Peek the talented and the champion long distance bareback standing lady rider of the world, will give an exhibition of scientific equestrianism at the Horse Park Sunday and Monday. Miss Peek performs the startling feat of standing on two horses with one foot on each horse's back while going better than a two-minute gait.

FIRE AT WEINHARD'S BREWERY.—The fire alarm from box 28, at 4 45 P M yesterday was for a fire in a shed on the grounds occupied by Weinhard & Co.'s brewery on Eleventh and C streets. While the tar roofers were engaged tarring and cleaning bar the tar caught fire and spread to the shed which was extinguished without trouble. Mr. Weinhard says his loss was small.

INJURED BY ALFRED BORDEN.—Alfred Borden a sleeping car conductor, having made the run between Portland and Ashland on the Oregon & California road for a number of years, died this afternoon of typhoid fever at the hospital. TO-DAY WE HAVE THE RACES

First Day of the Spring Meeting of the Portland Speed Association.

Seven Speedy Horses Entered in the Half Mile Dash and Repeat—Lady Maud the Favorite of the Trotters

The spring meeting of the Portland Speed Association will open in a blaze of glory to-day All the indications are for a successful meeting The association has done all it can to this end in a horse sense and it remains with the public to determine the success of the financial part of the programme

The association counts on a larger attendance to-day than was had on any day during the meeting last fall. The committees who have been selling tickets during the past few days have done far better than they expected and are highly gratified at the great interest manifested in the meeting they have disposed of between 1000 and 1500 tickets in coupon form which are good for any day s races

It must not be forgotten either that the association has gone to an expense of over $1000 in fixing up the track and grounds and in making improvements for the convenience of the public. At the park landing a staging and landing has been built so that people can go ashore with ease. The grounds have been cleared so that one now has a perfect, unobstructed view from start to finish a pump has been put in so that the track is well watered fences and reservoirs have been built and turns thrown up on the track Purses aggregating nearly $3500 have also been offered, making the total expenses of the meeting nearly $4000.

The programme for to-day is as follows

R. B. Perkins names ch m Maud Knox, by Winthrop Knox, dam unknown

The horses will be called up promptly at 2 o clock and will be started off at 2 30. If any of the horses are not ready on time the race will be started without them

The running race promises to be a great event and more interest has been taken in it than in any event of the kind that has ever taken place in Oregon The horses are said to be so evenly matched that even old time horsemen are puzzled when they come to pick out the possible winner This was evidenced in the pool selling last evening The Horses that sold as favorites in the beginning dropped down low before the selling closed The horses entered for the trot are known to be speedy and a good race is expected

Arrangements have been carefully perfected for transportation to the park. The steamer Salem and a barge will leave the foot of Washington street promptly at 11 A M and 12 M, and 1 and 2 P M The tickets will be good on the narrow gauge trains leaving the Jefferson street depot and connecting with a ferry which lands at the park Passengers taking this route must leave the train at Riverview station One can also drive to the park by crossing the Jefferson or Stark street ferry or the Morrison street bridge and taking the county road leading to City View

Tickets may be purchased at M. A. Gunst & Co.'s store at No 125 First street J P Mayer's cigar store at No. 142 First street the Washington street dock and at the narrow gauge depot.

W M Ayers sold pools on the races at the Pantheon last evening Very few pools were sold on the running race but few seeming to have definite ideas of a favorite. Bogus Tom Lamar and Jou Jou sold highest Quebec sold for $7 and Bingo Laura D and Billow for $2. Lady Maud was the favorite of the trotters. She sold for $10, Maud Knox for $10, Almonette for $7 and Kitty Ham for $4

The manner in which the horses will be handicapped in the seven eighths mile handicap race which takes place to-morrow, will be announced on the blackboard at the track at the close of the races to-day All entries for this race must be paid for with the secretary, M A Gunst by to-night

SMITH ON VILLARD.

Elijah Replies to Henry's "Interview With Himself."

Remarks on "Gratitude," and a General Review of Mr. Villard's Business Career

Mr Villard a prepared interview published by the New York Tribune and telegraphed to many other newspapers, together with a pamphlet published by him, in which Elijah Smith was sharply attacked, has moved the last named gentleman to make an answer in which Mr Villard himself comes in for a "review The document is very long, and we therefore omit the merely introductory parts of it. Mr Smith says

There is about the usual percentage of truth in the statement made by Mr Villard, in his carefully prepared interview with himself, as there has been in most of his statements since he became a factor in Wall street That small percentage, he has carefully and adroitly worked into his statement for effect on the public

I feel that this mode of conducting the controversy for the control of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company by making personal charges or attacks through the newspapers unwise and I dislike it exceedingly, as it is distasteful to me I have hesitated about paying any attention to references to myself in Mr Villard's carefully prepared talk and should have declined to make any reply to his statements except to repel his insinuation as to my personal interest in the sale of the bonds made by me for the O R & N Co

As to Mr Villard's remarks on the subject of gratitude There are people whose memories are not so short or so foggy as his seems to be who feel that he is largely indebted to those who inherited the fruitful wrecks he left in 1884 and who have spent several years in what at first seemed to be a forlorn effort to save something for his victims. The Oregon & Transcontinental Company was saved from liquidation in bankruptcy only by the persistent efforts of those who succeeded Mr Villard. When he turned the company over to Mr Endicott its floating debt was about $27 000 000 although it has been stated to be an amount very much less than that The exact amount and to whom due was ascertained only after weeks of committee and expert work At the time it became prominent the amount had been reduced to $12,000,000 or $13 000,000, of which about $4 000 000 was due in sums of $100 000 to $1 200 000 on call and the remainder consisted of a time loan of $8 000 000 that matured on December 21, 1884. The company was carried through in spite of great difficulties which at times discouraged some of the directors who had undertaken the job and who contended that it was useless to struggle against the times and the desperate efforts made by street operators to destroy the credit every time a large loan matured hoping thereby to prevent renewals of the same and force the company into liquidation When the $8 000 000 loan came due on December 31 1884, the attempt to renew it under the conditions that existed was generally ridiculed by the street It hoped and predicted that the company would be wound up and its assets forced upon the market The predictions came very near being fulfilled as at 6 o'clock on the night of December 31, 1884 the loan was about $900 000 short of being taken and the bankers were waiting to know what was to be done about the payment of some $2,000,000 of debt which they held. I was compelled to subscribe to the amount not taken or see the loan and the company fail Mr Villard can find in his letter book the expressions he addressed to members of the management, complimenting them upon their success in this matter

The condition in which Mr Villard left not only the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, but the Oregon companies as well, was such that when he left the country I was severely criticised for allowing him to do so. Here are some of the things that the examination of those companies showed

He was in debt to the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company $4,22 625, to secure which he turned over his house on Madison avenue, from which about $207,000 was realized, leaving a loss of over $215 000 and about two years interest

He had spent, without authority $215,000 to build a hotel in Portland When it was first seen by some of the eastern directors, who asked him for whom it was built, he replied that he did not know which company would take it and that he might take it himself On examination it was found that $7) 000 of the O R & N Co s money, and about $140 000 Oregon and Transcontinental moneys as near as I can recollect, had been expended on it on which there was a loss to the Oregon and Transcontinental Company when the property was sold of nearly $100 000 A day or two was built in Portland under his direction and without authority that cost some $40 000 of the O R & N Co s money Up to date it has been an utter failure for reasons that any practical business man could and should have known before spending a dollar on its construction Large amounts of money were spent for elevators and the like and upon the several companies planned for which were never seen by some of the companies that were assessed In the same manner something like $400 000 was spent and swas ed around to maintain what was called the Northern Transcontinental Survey. The benefits of that expenditure cannot be ascertained to this day

He used without any authority whatever between $500,000 and $500 000 of the money of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company to construct the steamer Santa Rosa for the Oregon Improvement Company When it was discovered, the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company secured itself only getting a transfer of some lands and will eventually get out of the matter without much loss

There was a balance standing against Mr Villard of $1 000 000 on the books of the Oregon & Transcontinental Co any when the experts had written up his account It is true that when it was settled he claimed an offset for commission and for indorsements and discount on stock sold, but of the statements of some of his associate directors are to be relied upon, there was little basis for some of his claims and even if allowed they would have left a large amount due and unaccounted for

Mr Villard made a lease of the Oregon and Calfornia road to the O & T Co coupled with a construction contract which in the year and a half that it existed cost the Oregon and Transcontinental Co about [illegible] $50,000 He leased the Oregon and California road for a term of 99 years, with privilege of renewal for 99 years more, which in no event could reach within thirty miles of the O R & N Co s railroad to the line named to prevent competition between the Oregonian and Oregon and California, which he and his friends had been for a long time interested in and of which he was president The lease was put through the Portland board upon his statement that it was only to be a temporary arrangement until the Oregon and California could get into condition to take the lease The stockholders of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company are to be congratulated if at the United States expense Mr Villard has declared the lease illegal and void and has thus saved this company from an accumulated rental of about $1 200,000 and an annual charge of some $230 000 for interest and sinking fund for the balance of a 99 years lease. And this for a road and property that has never since the day it was leased earned its operating expenses and does not at the present time earn interest on the receiver's certificates it may have been issued to it in opposition and to pay pending the litigation as to the validity of the lease

The O & T Co has among its assets $1,0 000 of Oregon Iron and Steel Company stock which was subscribed for by Mr Villard individually, as I have been informed, and turned over to the Oregon & Transcontinental Company This asset has been almost worthless until recently With new capital added it may bring about half of what it cost There was spent something like $50 000 to build dock inclosure at East Portland a proper charge for which would have been less than half that sum They were built solely to fulfill Mr Villard's prediction that he would cross the Willamette river without a change of car or in his own car at the time of the grand excursion in which about $...0 000 of the Northern Pacific Company's money was wasted The occasion was the driving of the gold spike which by the way pricked the great bubble and caused the tremendous crash that followed up the first appearance of Mr Henry Villard

Notwithstanding all of these mistakes and many more of a similar character that can be said if it be necessary I believed during Mr Villard's absence in Europe that he had lost his own means as well as those of others who had blindly followed him I believed that when he was called up at midnight on December 16 1883 by some of his associates who had become so alarmed they could no longer delay demanding his resignation as President of the O R & N Co s and a truthful statement of their condition and subsequently when he was called upon to turn over his assets to make good his accounts with these companies, that he had transferred everything he had to keep up appearances that he will say no more and that he left the country without making a settlement of accounts, and as the agreement was framed by his friends who belong to these companies from the beginning of the world till now Apart from this I have done Mr Villard was not long in finding his way back and he has since made sundry visits which, charitable enough to believe with the public in general, no wonder if it would [illegible] been better to have taken the course I would [illegible] have pursued in his case I [illegible] to the [illegible] and of those who told me [illegible] Mr Villard for allowing [illegible] country

My belief in the character confidence than any one could manage in [illegible] has known and still knows to be good in this connection it has sunk more money for other people in a shorter time than [illegible] in this country has ever before or since [illegible] Such [illegible] the same [illegible] the same [illegible] that [illegible] great one [illegible]

But on his return to this country Mr Villard has stated that his downfall was largely due to the treatment by his bankers and he felt that they should be made responsible or liable for some things they had done As is well known the Oregon & Transcontinental Company has begun suit against the bankers for the recovery of $2,000 000 of St. Paul and Northern Pacific stock Not one of Mr Villard s first efforts on his return was to influence the withdrawal of that suit in fact of the fact that the attorneys in charge of it advised that it was positively good for the recovery of one if not two millions of dollars That suit has gone overboard The argument he used in the suit in favor of the withdrawal of that suit was that it was essential to the success of his future financial operations that he should be on good terms with the same bankers who he claimed had plucked him so badly in 1883. I fought against the abandonment of the suit, but was overruled by the other members of the O & T board.

As showing Mr Villard's views at the time of his departure, I annex a statement that was dictated by him to his clerk and stenographer, Mr Spofford, about another transaction which chafed him exceedingly and it was expected that a suit for the recovery of the $177,000 referred to in the transaction would be commenced after his departure. The statement is as follows

Late in June, 1883 Mr Fabbri, of the firm of Drexel, Morgan & Co who had just been elected a director of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company and a member of its finance committee, sought a conversation with me in reference to further acquisitions of Northern Pacific preferred stock by the Oregon & Transcontinental Company He said he well knew myself, and all other directors had always been of the opinion that, as the whole existence of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company depended upon its control of the Northern Pacific and O R & N companies the Oregon & Transcontinental Company would never be safe without actually owning an absolute majority of the stocks of both companies. Mr Fabbri at the interview expressed the belief, which I shared, that Northern Pacific preferred stock would never again be as cheap after the completion of the Northern Pacific as before, and that he thought that the proper time to increase the Oregon & Transcontinental Company s holding of that stock Admitting the force of his arguments I pointed out the fact to him that the O & T Co had no resources to buy stock with He, therefore, offered in the name of his firm to make the transaction as easy as possible for the O & T Co He proposed to buy 50 000 shares of that stock for us, on a margin of 25 per cent in O & T bonds, and to carry the stock for one year with that collateral at the rate of interest and commission, amounting together to about 12 per cent He suggested, at the same time that if such a transaction was carried out, it would be desirable, in order to prevent a rise in the stock to keep the knowledge of it confined to as few persons as possible He suggested that no knowledge of it be imparted to other persons than Mr Thomas and myself and Mr E D Adams of the firm of Winslow Lanier & Co whom he proposed to interest in the transaction, Mr Adams being also a director of the O & T Co, and a member of the finance committee Mr Fabbri saw Mr Adams Mr Adams replied that owing to the impending retirement of Mr. Ellis from the firm on July 1, he thought it unwise to enter into the transaction immediately, but that Mr Fabbri would find his firm ready to entertain it after the first of July

Thinking it really essential to increase our holding as fast as possible to an absolute majority of the stock I agreed to the proposition, and a formal contract was entered into on the basis decscribed The stock was bought at prices set forth in the account rendered Drexel, Morgan & Co, and the collateral in the O & T bonds put up After my return in October from the opening of the road Messrs. Drexel Morgan & Co approached me with propositions [illegible] changing the terms of the loan as regards the collateral and as regards the time In other words, they wanted the substitution of Northern Pacific preferred and common for O R & N Co stocks for the O & T bonds which served as margin to the demand as long as I could, but, as compliance with was a condition of their helping the negotiation of the Northern Pacific second mortgage, I finally had to yield Before the transaction was actually closed, when I called on Messrs. Drexel Morgan & Co for the surrender of collaterals which became returnable upon the payment of advances to the O & T Co and to the Northern Pacific by delivery of N P first mortgage bonds they refused to deliver such collateral and held it to secure other indebtedness and also the advance made in the purchase of 50,000 shares of Northern Pacific preferred stock. The original transaction was closed and an account rendered This account included an arbitrary utterly unauthorized charge of $296 000 as an extra commission of 4 per cent on the cost of that stock

"As already mentioned, at the express wish of Messrs. D. [illegible] the purchase of the stocks was kept a secret, and not communicated to any other members of the O & T board than Messrs. Fabbri Thomas Adams and myself No action was had by the board or by the finance committee regarding this transaction at all before my return from the opening of the road Messrs. D M & Co were then very much alarmed about this want of an official approbation of the transaction by the O & T board and on the advice of their counsel proceedings of the meetings of the finance committee alleged to have been held, but which in fact was never held at all This makes his recent action in trying to get authority to create ten millions of preferred stock seem a tame and innocent affair

FROM STEPTOE BUTTE

A Beautiful Panorama, Including the Cities of Farmington, Cheney, Garfield and Colfax

James S. Davis—more commonly and very generally known in Eastern Washington as Cash Up-Davis—evidently has an eye for nature and an idea of the picturesque, as is shown by the following contributed by him to the Palouse Gazette:

I am seated in my observatory on the top of Steptoe butte viewing this grand country for miles in every direction through my telescope It is a beautiful day—no clear, and objects brought so near by the aid of the glass that I can almost distinguish faces in the surrounding towns I see the people of Farmington moving to and fro, evidently prosperous. A train of cars moves swiftly across the fertile country dropping passengers here and freight there, then on in search of business I turn my glass upon Cheney Garfield and Elberton in succession and the same busy scene unfolds Busy Oakdale is scanned next, among other things a schoolhouse which is a credit to the county I turn my glass on Colfax the hub of this wonderful panorama the commercial center of this country, which has grown and flourished day by day Curling upward and mingling of smoke from her mills and manufacturing establishments—silent yet forceful reminders of the scene of activity to be found below the crests of the surrounding hills Tall, stately college building perched above this busy hive of industry, stands forth like a sentinel How enterprising it looks And the farmer the bone and sinew of the land is he not conspicuous in this scene either in person or by his works Within a radius of fifty miles I see comfortable farm homes without number and countless acres of upturned sod—evidence of his industry Once seen this picture will never fade from memory Come up and take a peep at it the butte is now open

DRAGGED TO DEATH

Horrible Mutilation of a Young Man at the Heels of a Wild Horse

The Ochoco Review published at Prineville, Crook county has the following

On last Thursday evening an accident resulting in the death of a young man by the name of Weston happened near Van Houten's on Hay Creek The young man was handling a lot of range horses in company with Jim Young, Mr Cole and while leading one the rope got fastened on his foot and the horse ran a half mile with him Mr Cole succeeded in heading the horse off and rescued the young man who was horribly mutilated and dead Examination showed that his leg was broken at the ankle several ribs broken neck broken, and his head a mass of jelly, brains all gone Young Weston lately came from St Paul and was not used to handling wild horses He was 2 years and had no other relative here than the one mentioned

EAGLE VALLEY—UNION COUNTY

The Eastern Oregon Republican has the following correspondence from a beautiful part of Union county near Grand Ronde valley

Eagle valley has never before been in so prosperous a condition Hundreds of acres of waving alfalfa, almost ready for mowing greet the eye, and the purple bloom presents a beautiful sight Thousands of tons of alfalfa will be raised this season, wheat will sell for a good price, and this alone is sufficient to induce men of capital to invest in Eagle real estate Last winter stock from all parts of the country was fed here A single acre of land will produce during the season from five to seven tons of hay, which readily explains why so small a valley can meet the demand made upon it for hay

Another rapidly growing industry in Eagle valley is bee keeping The time is not far distant when this will be a land flowing with milk and honey Parker, Barrows & Co are now the principal apiarists here who have a number of colonies Mr Parker is a practical apiarist, having made it a study for a long time The business requires close attention and a thorough knowledge of the ways of the Apis Mellifica. That this is a great bee country is shown by the fact of one colony belonging to Mr Parker producing 400 pounds of honey that readily sold for twenty five cents per pound.

Shortest Route to Klamath County

The Oregonians don't like to have the Linkville and Klamath county people seek the shortest route to and around via Klamath river and Agency says the Yreka Journal but want to force them over a longer and more difficult road to Ashland which is impassable in winter on account of deep snow The Klamath county people naturally desire the cheapest and shortest route to reach the railroad to San Francisco and Portland, just the same as the Del Norte county people go to Grant s Pass in Oregon

This magnificent property comprises 1400 lots and lies immediately between the city of East Portland (population [illegible]) on the south and the city of Albina (population 4000) on the north, being really a "reserve" between two populous cities with a combined population of SIXTEEN THOUSAND It is high, commanding a view of the entire city of East Portland and Albina and is reached by the street cars of the Willamette Bridge Railway Co from either Portland or East Portland This company is now operating two lines of street cars, one running north from Holladay's addition to the heart of East Portland, across the Morrison street bridge, and the other running due west across the new steel bridge, terminating in Portland In addition to these two lines the cars of the Vancouver motor line run directly through the addition from north to south The property can also be easily reached from the "west side" by either the Scottsdale or Portland road Company's steam ferry or by the small ferries running from Portland to Albina. Some of the finest residences on the "west side" are located in this addition Many of the most prominent residents of Portland and East Portland are now purchasing property in Holladay's addition and many elegant and substantial residences will be constructed there during the coming season. A magnificent Boulevard, Holladay avenue, 100 feet wide, cuts through the entire property from west to east, and is the most popular drives out of the city This connects with the new steel railroad and wagon bridge (spanning the Willamette) on the west, thus giving easy access into Portland from this most desirable property. FLOUR—The local market presents a somewhat healthier look to the effect that long cablegrams from Russia to the effect that long continued drouths have injured the wheat and rendered shipments from that country unprofitable. Prices have advanced in Russia and the English markets are stronger, while New York showed a sharp advance for the day. The demand for the week have been 27,840 ctls., of which amount the valley contributed 3100 ctls. and Shaver Oregon 24,740 ctls. BARLEY—Receipts for the past week have been 1,000 barrels, an increase from last week. Eastern Oregon sent in 2941 bazrels and the valley one hundred. The market rules steady but dull. The demand is fair but the stagnation of trade is beginning to have its effect, the darkest market is beginning to have its effect, and the tendency is toward lower prices, without any very great break. We quote standard brands at 85 other brands, $5 50.

OATS—The market is glutted and shows no sign of improvement. The receipts for the week past have been 4,628 ctls, but slightly greater than for the week previous. Trade is timid and dealings are with consumers direct to a great extent; 80c is obtainable for choice clean oats when wanted, but nothing higher. We quote 26@30c.

MILLSTUFFS—Receipts for the past six days have been 2000 sks; of this amount 878 ctls. are bran, 1000 sks; shorts and 1000 ctls. mixed. The market is dull and lifeless. Bran, $13@ ton; shorts, $14@15; chop, $17 50@20; ground barley, $16@18 per ton.

POTATOES—Old onions are about out of the market. New Oregon produce has not yet begun to come in. The market is supplied with California new. We quote $1 60 the, latter figure obtainable only for choice selected No. 1 hard.

VEGETABLES—The market is active and full of Oregon produce, California being about run out, only beans, cucumbers and tomatoes coming up. We quote California green tomatoes at $2 50 a box; cucumbers, 40c a dozen; beans, 5c per pound; green peas, 6@8c per pound; lettuce, 10c per dozen bunches; California cabbage, 1½@; turnips, old, 75c a sack; carrots, old, 75c a sack.

POTATOES—Receipts for the past six days have been light. The market is improving. We quote 45c for old, 2½c for new.

GREEN FRUITS—Receipts for the past week have been 587 boxes. The market is active and is very firm. Oranges all show an advance. Most low California peaches have come up, but they are of very poor grade. We quote St. Michael and high grade oranges $4@4 50; Riverside, $3 75; Los Angeles, scarce, $2 50; lemons, $3 50; bananas, $3 50@4 50 per bunch; strawberries, Oregon, 8@9c per pound; California apricots, 12 per box; cherries, 50@75c per box.

BUTTER—The receipts for the past week have been 135 pkgs. Market steady, owing to the fact that dairymen have begun to pack, and consequently refuse to send their product to market. We quote fancy choice dairy 20c per pound, 40c a roll, good to fair 15c@17½c, common 10c@12½c.

POULTRY—The market is active. The demand for all kinds, however, hardly equalling the supply, which is ample. We quote: Chickens, old hens, $3; young broilers $2 50@4, turkeys 16c per pound, ducks and geese nominal at $3@3.

EGGS—The market is fairly active. The report of Eastern eggs weakened the market in some places to-day. We quote 12@20c. Receipts for the week have been 1942 cases.

HIDES—Receipts for the past week have been 12,000 pounds. The market is weak and heavily stocked and gives every indication of increased stocks and decidedly lower prices. We quote: Dry hides, selected prime, 8@10c; green, selected, over 25 pounds, 4c, under 25 pounds, 3c; sheep pelts, short wool, 10@50c; medium, 60@80c; long, $1@1 25; shearlings, 10@20c; tallow, good to prime, 2½@3c.

HAY—Receipts for the week have been 30 tons. The market is heavily stocked and dull. We quote baled and loose alike $12@14.

WOOL—Receipts for the past week have been 13,776 pounds. The market continues dull and weak, with little business being done. We quote Eastern Oregon choice, 15c, heavy, 8@11c, valley 18@20c.

HOPS—NOMINAL.

MOLASSES—The market rules even. Refiners locals continue firmer than for some time, but show no advance in prices. We quote: Oregon steam, barns 12½@13c, breakfast bacon 13c, sides 10½@11c, shoulders 9@9½c, hams 12½@13c. Eastern hams 12½@13c, breakfast bacon 12½c, lard 9½@ 10½c.

DRIED FRUITS—Receipts for the week have been 48 pkgs. The market is well sustained. Oregon prunes are selling more freely at the reduced rates and dealers are now handling Oregon fruit to the exclusion of imported lots. We quote: Sun dried apples quarters 4@5c, sliced 4@6c, bleached Eastern dried 6@8c, unbleached Plummer dried 6@8c. Oregon prunes, Italians 5c, silver prunes 5c, petite 6½@7c, German 6@6½c. Pears, Plummer dried 8@9c, sun dried and factory plums 7@8c, peaches, firm at 8@10c. Raisins $1 75@2 25 a box. Nuts, Sicily Soft shell almonds 14@15c, California figs 8c per pound.

The Merchandise Market.

The past week has been a good one, all branches of trade reporting excellent business.

THE LOCAL MARKET.

PEACHES—Quote 3c 75c; 5s, 85c.

SUGARS—On Wednesday afternoon all grades advanced ½c which was the only change of the week. We quote: Golden C, 6¼c; extra C, 7c; dry granulated, 8¼c; cube, crushed and powdered, 8½c.

BEANS—The market shows no change. We quote: Small whites, $2 50; pink, $2@2 25; bayos, $2 25@2 50; limas, $4 5c per central.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The stock market to-day was somewhat more active than yesterday, but the dealings were principally in the grangers in the earlier list, while the trading in trust shares and the industrial department assumed very large proportions. The market was strong from the beginning to the end, and the losses of the last few days were entirely recovered, and in many instances something in addition.

Government bonds have been dull and steady.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Produce receipts past 24 hours include wheat 10,500 ctls, flour, 21,000 qr sks, oats 320 ctls, barley 920 ctls, potatoes 1700 sks.

Freights—Nothing doing in grain freights. Tonnage is held at what exporters consider above market values. For lumber the bark J. H. Bowers was taken, to load at Puget sound for River Platte. For coal the bark Oregon will load at Nanaimo for San Francisco.

Wheat—Foreign telegraphic advices are of a somewhat more favorable character, giving a better undertone to the market, but fails to stimulate trading. The report of drought in Russia has had the effect to stiffen holders' views, who offer sparingly at an advance in asking prices. Shipment do not show any disposition to trade at above $1 25@1 27½ per cental for standard No. 1 shipping. Options—Morning session: Prices advanced to $1 32 for buyer year, a gain of 1½c over last night's close. Sales, 500 tons. On afternoon call buyer year opened at $1 32½; closed, $1 32½. Seller year (now) closed at $1 30.

Barley—Holders of choice feed offer sparingly at present market prices, but there is apparently no limit to offerings of poor and weevilly stock. A fair jobbing trade is done on the basis of 55@ 57½c for shipping grades and 60@62½c for No. 1 and choice feed. Brewing ranges at 65@75c for common to choice. Options quiet. Buyer, 78¼@78¾. Seller year (now) 69¼.

Oats—Trading is of such a limited character that stocks show little if any reduction. Buyers still have the upper hand and manage to wring concessions out of holders. The tendency of the market is downwards owing to shading of prices by urgent sellers. Quote—Feed, choice, 92½@93½; No. 1 feed, 85@87½c; common, 87½@92½c; milling, $1 02½@1 05.

Bran—Fairly active at $11 50@18 per ton for all kinds.

Middlings—Good inquiry. Choice, $15 50@16; lower grades, $12 50@15 per ton.

Hops—Light stocks, largely of inferior quality, prevents any active movement. Quotations are mostly nominal at from 10 to 15c.

Bags—Grain bags are firmly held and the near approach of harvesting gives promise of an active demand in a few weeks. Calcuttas, June and July, 8½@8¾c.

Potatoes—Good qualities find ready purchasers at 80@85. For poorer grades from 40c to 75c represent market quotations.

Wool—There is a good demand for clean wools, while heavy, dusty clips are comparatively neglected. Eastern Oregon, (old,) 12@17c, (new,) 12@ 20c.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET REVIEW.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Although trade has been quiet for a few weeks there seems to be great confidence in all branches of business, owing to the splendid crop prospects. All kereals are weak.

New wheat, July delivery, is selling down to $1 22½, and for good old crop $1 27½ is the average figure for spot lots. At the same time, a round lot of choice was bought for Australia at $1 32½.

The barley market is very weak. There are large stocks of last year's crop on hand, and besides 1887 barley is yet found.

Oats are also offering in large quantities, but the prices are no lower than last week.

Grain bags have advanced to 8¼ cents spot, on the strength of the fine crop prospects, with a fair trade reported at the advance.

Produce is quiet. As a rule, the market is well supplied with most lines, and prices are weak. A notable exception, however, is wool, which is active and strong with sales of 1,000,000 pounds during the week.

Hops continue dull, there being no choice of any consequence here, and common stock is not being wanted. The forthcoming yield of the Pacific coast is now estimated at about 100,000 bales.

It is pretty well understood now that the great majority of the lumber dealers have entered into another combination, and the rates agreed upon several weeks ago are steadily maintained. Meanwhile, notwithstanding the efforts of the mills to diminish the production by shutting down now and then, the receipts at this port show a large gain over those of last year.

The receipts of coal at this port in May were large, being 109,990 tons. The market is now steady.

Butter and eggs are both on the down grade, with increasing supplies.

Potatoes are also abundant and lower. The receipts of new crop are thus far moderate.

Dried fruit is quiet, as the new crop is now not far off.

Canned salmon is lifeless, but steadily held. Barreled salmon is very firm.

Canned fruits are reported in better tone, partly owing to the reduced overland freight rate, and partly to the shipment of about 60,000 cases of apricots and peaches to New York by rail, which has relieved the large holders. According to the canners themselves, the pack of California fruits this year will be considerable less than that of 1888.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 5.—There was a stronger tone at the opening, which prevailed to the close. On some of the favorite options an advance of 1¼c per bushel was established. Opening prices were: 81¾c July, 81¾c August, 82¼c September. Noon—81¾c July, 82¾c August, 83¾c September. Closed—81½c June, 82¾c July, 82¾c August, 83¾c September, 86¾c December.

Grain freights by steam to Liverpool are firm at 3¼d per bushel.

CONSOLIDATION THE OBJECT.

Secret Session of Delegates From Three Associations of Railway Employes.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Delegates from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the Brotherhood of Railway Brakemen and the Switchmen's Association, held a secret meeting to-day and succeeded in bringing about a confederation of the three branches of railroad employes named. The nine delegates worked as a unit, and the meeting was characterized by a harmonious feeling.

Committees were appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws. They will be at work for two or three days. One of the prime movers in the conference said to-night that it was but a step towards uniting all the organizations of railway employes.

"The conductors are ready to join us," he said, "as are also most of the engineers, although Chief Arthur and a number of his followers are averse to the plan. Many, believe, however, that he will never be re-elected. If we secure the conductors and engineers we will have the most powerful labor organization in the world."

CALIFORNIA NEWS ITEMS.

Irrigation of Arid Lands.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—At a meeting of the local committee on irrigation of arid lands, W. H. Mills made a spirited address, in which he urged that the expenses of the members of the committee living in the extreme southern part of the state be paid to and from the committee meetings, and also that the committee employ a paid secretary. On motion, an appropriation of $1000 was ordered for the necessary expenses of the committee. The committee having but eight weeks in which to arrange matters before the arrival of the senatorial committee, the members agreed to meet every other Monday, at 11 A. M. Chairman Estee stated that Captain Merry had refused to serve on the committee. Senator Thompson, of Nevada, on motion, was elected to fill the position.

Mutual Benefit Fire Insurance Company.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—The Merchants' League have held a meeting and discussed the proposition advanced to form a mutual benefit fire insurance company in this state. Up to date the party will consist of General and Mrs. Alger, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Platt and Judge and Mrs. Thurston. General Alger's private car will carry eight persons comfortably, and probably two more will be added to the list before the 25th, the date fixed for the departure.

A Motion by Bradlaugh.

LONDON, June 4.—In the commons to-day, on a vote of £28,000 for the secret service, Bradlaugh moved to reduce the amount by £5,000. The vote, he said, was an open door to misuse of funds, and as an instance he referred to the spy Lesaron as receiving money from the secret service fund, through a person not personally responsible to the ministers. Secret money fostered the corruption of conspiracies by secret service agents. All expenditures ought to be opened to audit. The motion to reduce the amount was rejected, 141 to 43.

Sunday Work in the Postoffice.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The postmaster-general has issued a circular letter to the postmasters of 100 of the largest postoffices, asking them to report in detail the amount of work done in their respective offices on Sunday, and also requesting them to offer suggestions as to the best means of reducing work on that day.

A MATTER OF CHOICE.

Dana, of the New York Sun, was asked whether port wine did not bring on the gout. He replied that he thought it did, but that the man who would not prefer to suffer a few twinges of the gout rather than give up his port wine wasn't a man after his heart.

Many things like this are a matter of choice, and we really believe that we are justified in saying that those who will not, in the face of the testimony which we can offer, try ATHLOPHOROS when they have Neuralgia or Rheumatism, really choose to keep the rheumatism rather than alter their opinions.

BASEBALL FOR CHARITY.

A nine composed of employes of Lewis & Dryden's printing establishment and another composed of THE OREGONIAN and Telegram will cross bats at Clinton & McCoy's grounds Saturday afternoon, the proceeds of the game to be donated to the Johnstown sufferers. Game will be called at 1 o'clock sharp. The admission fee will be placed at a figure to insure a large attendance. Mayor DeLashmutt has been asked to umpire.

Games have been played for charitable purposes in the East and always drew large audiences. The mayor of Minneapolis has acted as umpire on more than one occasion, and the games were noticeable for humorous incidents rather than for good ball playing, and the rules were more honored in the breach than in the observance. The nines to play Saturday propose to introduce many of the old features of the game into their contest and promise that those who attend will have "lots of fun." The bats for the game will be furnished free by H. T. Hudson & Co., of No. 91 First street, and the balls by Wm. Beck & Son, of Nos. 165 and 167 Second street.

Clinton & McCoy offer their grounds free of charge to any nines that will play Sunday for the benefit of the sufferers. All players who are willing to play are requested to leave their names with Mr McCoy, corner of First and Stark streets. Mr. McCoy thinks the Northern Pacific Terminal Company's nine will play for one team.

EXPRESS COMPANY'S OFFER

This afternoon the superintendent of the Northern Pacific Express Company, residing here, received the following telegram

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 5.

M. G. Hall, Northern Pacific Express, Portland, Or.—This company will transport over its lines free of charges any donations of clothing, money, etc., destined for the sufferers at Johnstown, Pa., which are shipped by duly authorized committees named by the citizens of the various places. Such shipments are to be addressed to relief committees. Connecting express companies advise me they will transport such shipments from St. Paul to destination free. H. H BROWNING,
Gen. Supt. Northern Pacific Express.

THE W. U. T. CO. TO THE FRONT.

This afternoon the following press dispatch was received at the Telegram office:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Superintendent Jaynes, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, has issued orders to all telegraph offices that all messages of regularly organized committees of the interest of the Johnstown flood sufferers be sent free of charge.

The Western Union cannot transfer money, as its funds are exhausted, owing to numerous applicants, but messages of banks or others transferring money will be free.

HERE IS A FINE CHANCE.

The Marine band, at a meeting last night, agreed to offer its services free of charge to any entertainment or concert given for the benefit of the Johnstown sufferers. The boys will be ready to play any evening after the middle of next week. It has been suggested that a promenade concert and ball be given at the Exposition building for the benefit of the sufferers. The band boys would be glad to extend their services for such a purpose. Call on or address R. H. Birdsall, at Snell, Heitzu & Woodard's.

WILL THE SHOE FACTORY COME?

It Will Be Built at Once if the Bonus is Forthcoming—Plans and Specifications Drawn.

It is beginning to look as if the proposed shoe factory to be built in this city is an assured fact. The gentleman who is here in the interest of Eastern capitalists, to look over the field and select a location for the plant, has the plans and specifications already drawn. The plans for the building have been slightly altered from what was at first contemplated, in that a wing 30x50 feet will be added to the main structure, which is to be 30x100 feet. The entire building will be four stories in height and the cost of the plant, by the addition of this wing, will be increased to $35,000.

Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday, and the incorporators are ready to proceed with the erection of the building as soon as the $15,000 bonus asked is subscribed.

A start has already been made on this bonus fund by the First National bank of East Portland, which yesterday headed the list with $2000. The committee to whom the bonus will be paid consists of C. H Meussdorfer, John Kenworthy and H. D McGuire, but it will be increased by adding to it at least four or five more representative business men.

One-third of the bonus is asked upon the completion of the building, another third as soon as the machinery is in and the remaining third when the factory is in operation. It is stipulated in the contract with the committee holding the funds in charge, that the factory will be run three years or the plant will be forfeited.

There can be no question that the men backing this enterprise mean business. Among them are ex-Senator W. E. Rogger and H. D. Hoe, of Chicago, and several gentlemen from Massachusetts. They have plenty of capital, and could go ahead with the building without any bonus, but they only ask what is customary in all cities of any enterprise—a small inducement with which to get the goods on the market. If they secure the assurance that the bonus is forthcoming they could go ahead with the plant and get it in operation even if nothing is paid over the first year.

Other cities desiring manufacturing enterprises have given a bonus, as may be seen from the following: Hutchinson, Kan., gave $150,000 for a packing house; Wichita, Kan., $220,000 for car shops; Chicago $400,000 for car and machine shops; Albany and Salem, of this state, $25,000 each for a woolen factory, and Dixon, Ill., $50,000 for a shoe factory of a capacity of but thirty cases per day. Other cases could be cited.

The location of the proposed shoe factory in Portland (capacity, seventy-five cases per day) means an addition to the population of about 1500. It will give employment to 500 hands and the first year's pay roll will foot up to $150,000. In directly such a plant would increase the business of box factories and stimulate all other industries.

In Eastern cities the location of one shoe factory generally brings several more, and the same results will in all probability follow here. Let congregate together for self protection and a shoe and factory is always worth several thousand dollars to the first.

THE RAILROAD COMPROMISE

Villard's Attorney Here Has Received No Information of the Settlement.

A New York dispatch in yesterday's OREGONIAN stated that Presidents Adams and Oakes, of the Union and Northern Pacific, had reached a full understanding concerning the approaching election of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company; that all litigation in the New York courts affecting the Navigation Company's interests will be dismissed.

"How will this settlement affect pending litigation in this city?" asked a reporter of Hon. George H. Williams, who represents Henry Villard and the Oregon & Transcontinental Company in the injunction recently brought to restrain the issuance of the $10,000,000 of preferred stock.

"The suit here, as it now stands with the stipulation," he said, "is to restrain the Oregon & Transcontinental Company from issuing the preferred stock, and whether this settlement includes this action or not I do not know. It is possible that it was made without reference to the suit. I know nothing of the settlement beyond what I read in the dispatches, having received no official information regarding the matter. I can give no definite opinion until I am more definitely advised."

A reporter called to see Hon. J. K. Kelly, counsel for Elijah Smith and those who applied for the injunction, and found that the attorney was out of the city.

AN OREGON BOY IN EUROPE.

Ernest DeLashmutt Writes of the Sights—The Royal Carriages—Magnificent Theater—He Admires the Horses.

From a letter written to Mayor DeLashmutt by his son Ernest, who is studying at Leipsic, Germany, the following extracts, briefly recounting his travels and impressions of the country and notable sights met with, are taken.

Speaking of his visit to Vienna in company with a Mr. Schwabacher, of San Francisco, he says:

"We took a trip into the suburbs and saw Schonbrunn, the summer residence of the kaiser. We saw the royal stables, containing some magnificent outfits. We saw the team of ponies which the late crown prince used when a boy. These ponies are now over thirty years old and do nothing but eat and sleep. We also saw the guns, sporting implements, etc., belonging to the kaiser and in the carriage room, the carriage used by Napaleon, when he was crowned king of Italy. There we also saw the royal carriage, royal hearse, and carriages used by dukes, ministers and other dignitaries of state.

"They are all great, clumsy, finely decorated houses on wheels; some of them have to be entered by a ladder or a flight of stairs, so high are they. It takes about sixteen horses to draw one of these carriages."

Speaking of the theaters, he says:

"We took in the Royal Opera and heard some grand music. We also went to the Court theater, the second finest in the world, excelled by one only, which is in Paris. This theater is one magnificent blaze of electric lights, with a white background, and walls frescoed with gold and trimmed with red plush. Magnificent paintings adorn the ceilings and walls, and ice curtains dazzle with realistic brilliancy. In the foyer, where people promenade between the acts, I beheld the finest and most magnificent room I ever saw. It is beyond description for beauty of finish and design. When I entered it, the ladies in gorgeous toilets, the glittering uniforms, the beautiful painting and frescoing on the ceiling, which required two years in its completion, the dazzling light and brilliant gold trimmings, all combined, made me feel that a boy raised in Oregon is very green by the side of so much splendor."

It is when speaking of the horses and carriages of the country that the writer becomes most enthusiastic. "While walking through the Prater (swell park) he says, "I saw the carriages, and such carriages! I thought when I was in New York I saw some fine rigs, but they are nothing compared to Vienna rigs. Such coachmen, such carriages, such harness, (with heavy silver mountings), and such horses I have never seen before. The Hungarian horses are famous all over Europe. They can take a five-minute gait and keep it up for hours. They easily beat the American horse for the road, for they have more style, more speed and more endurance. A good many American trotting horses come to Vienna."

The custom in vogue in that country of bringing a horse to a full stop and turning him around once when he "breaks" in a race, struck him as very peculiar and behind the times. Instead of using a sulky, he says, they trot their horses under saddle.

A BAKERY BOYCOTTED.

The Oregon German Baking Company Under the Ban—Theo. Liebe's Statement.

Last Sunday the Bakers' Union of this city ordered a strike, and about thirty men, belonging to the union, quit work. The strike, it is alleged, was not for an advance of wages, but for a request for weekly payments and the privilege to board wherever they may choose.

Heretofore it has been customary for bakers, especially those who are single, to take their meals either in the bakery or at some restaurant designated by the proprietor of the bakery for which they work, and wages have been paid monthly.

The Bakers' Union, after considering this matter, decided that they had the right to weekly payments, and the privilege to eat wherever they liked. They accordingly made a peremptory request of the various bakeries to comply with their request and sign an agreement to that effect. As the bakeries did not comply, the strike was ordered. Since then about twenty of the strikers have gone back to work, having made satisfactory terms with their employers.

The "Oregon German Baking Company," it is claimed, has not come to terms, and this morning a boycott on that company is ordered by the union.

Theodore H. Liebe, speaking for the Oregon German Baking Company to an OREGONIAN reporter last night, stated that the proposed boycott was the most unjust attack ever made on the company. "Representatives of the Bakers' Union," he said, "came to me Sunday forenoon at 11 o'clock and demanded of me to sign a contract whereby they were to get weekly payments and $5 per week extra for board, so that they could eat wherever they liked. I refused to sign the paper, because it was Sunday, a legal holiday, and told them that I desired one week to consider their proposition. I only have two boarders in my employ, the rest all being men of family, who eat at their homes. They told me that if I would not do once sign, I could go without bread the next day. The men were accordingly ordered to quit, and I had to take off my coat and go to work myself. With the aid of a few others I picked up about the city I succeeded in getting out some bread. Monday I was called to the bedside of a sick relative, who died since. In the meantime one of my partners signed the contract, and two men were sent back by the union although seven had been ordered out. Wednesday they called out the two, so that we were again without men. Now they have ordered the boycott.

"I am paying higher wages than union prices and I would like to ask them whether they refer had to ask more than once for money. The men have had running accounts, so that they could draw money whenever they chose, and many of them had all their wages drawn before the end of the month. They have never getting more than they ask. They now intend to injure our business, but we will weather them out. We do not propose to give one inch, for we are only contending for our rights."

A BEAUTIFUL TESTIMONIAL.

"Jeff" Hayes, Ex-Manager of the Western Union, Remembered by His Co-Workers.

"Jeff" W. Hayes, until recently manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company in this city, was last evening presented with an engrossed testimonial, elegantly mounted, and signed by all the employes of the office.

"Jeff" was captured in front of the office, and upon the pretext of explaining some entries in the "log book," was surrounded by the operators, and after the following remarks by Chief Operator C. T. Day, who made the presentation speech, was handed the following testimonial:

"Although a newcomer here, our friendship dates back for twenty years. You have had around you co-workers who have been with you some for years and some for months, all have grown to esteem and love you as one only can when they are of one family. On behalf of your friends in this office I have great pleasure in presenting you this mark of their friendship and esteem. While you are to be separated from us we do not wish to be forgotten, and though we are rivals in one respect we wish that our old friendship should always remain.

"Jeff" was so taken by surprise that he could only say, "My friends, I shall prize this token of your regard above all. I sincerely thank you all and wish I could express myself in words. All I can say is, I thank you."

The testimonial is a masterpiece of penmanship and elegantly mounted. The crowning beauty being a telegraph key grasped by a hand in the peculiar way Mr. Hayes "holds a key" in the act of signing his letter "Y" in telegraph character, which is immediately under the key.

GLOVER WANTS TO FIGHT CAMPBELL.

He Will Do Battle With the Oregon Man for From $1000 to $2500.

Frank Glover, the Chicago pugilist, who was defeated by Joe McAuliffe and Joe Choynski in San Francisco, is in the city.

"I am here on private business," he said to a reporter yesterday.

"Did you come to make a fight with Dave Campbell, as has been stated,"

"That was not the sole purpose of my visit, but if I could arrange a fight with him it would be acceptable. I will fight Mr Campbell for any sum between $1000 and $2500."

POLICEMAN THOMAS MAKES A DENIAL.

PORTLAND, June 5.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Concerning "A Citizen's" communication in this morning's paper, regarding an infamous den in the vicinity of Seventh and Morrison streets, I wish to state that I am temporarily on the beat, and have never entered the house in question for any purpose. The article states that policemen have been seen entering and leaving the house, presumably to get a "drink or a bite of supper to sustain them in the rowdy manner." One night there was some noise in the house, but it was promptly quelled by the special policeman on the beat.

MATTERS OVER THE RIVER.

Gleanings From the East Portland Reporter's Note Book.

Church Being Repainted—Catholic Festival—Plans Being Prepared—Company Dissolved—Extra Trains—Personal and General.

The painters will commence at once repainting the Evangelical church in Stephens' addition. Among the improvements contemplated is a new bell. The pastor, Rev. L. S. Fisher, yesterday purchased an 850-pound bell, and it will soon be swung into position. Credit is due the pastor for working up these needed improvements. This church society will have charge of the new mission chapel in Tibbott's addition, the work being under the supervision of the pastor. The opening meeting will be held Sunday next.

"FLAG ORDINANCE."

Since the introduction of the ordinance requiring railways to have flagmen on crosswalks, the companies have been figuring up how many men they will want in case the ordinance is passed. If a flagman is placed on all crosswalks twenty-seven will be required on the Sunnyside extension and about the same number on the Portland & Vancouver railway. Then if the street railways are included within the application of the ordinance it will take 100 men. It may be that it is not intended to apply to anything but motor lines, but even in that case, it would be ridiculous to require flagmen at the crossings.

MORE SCHOOL ROOM.

Plans and specifications for the $4000 addition to the Central school building in Albina are being prepared. The increased attendance in the schools has made it necessary to have more room.

The contract for furnishing three school rooms in the East Portland public school buildings will be awarded Monday next, at the regular board meeting.

EXTRA TRAINS.

On the 5th of this month the Portland & Vancouver Railway Company began running an extra train in the evening. It leaves here at 7:15 P. M. Passengers leave Vancouver on the last trip to Portland at 7:30.

NEW ORGAN.

St David's (Episcopal) church is to have a new organ. The Ladies' Guild, by fair and entertainment given in Armory hall some time ago, raised more than $100 for the organ fund.

THE CATHOLIC FESTIVAL.

The Kirmess festival held last week netted $250. The horse and buggy were won by No. 7, held by Mr. Sinnott, of Stephens addition.

FAMILY CONTRIBUTIONS.

PORTLAND, June 6.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Supplementing the most commendable efforts of THE OREGONIAN in raising a general Johnstown fund, I wish to suggest that the children be enlisted in the noble cause by means of family contributions.

Preparing the plan in my family this morning, I was glad to find each one ready to contribute a little, and as the result hand you $6 60 from the Francis family.

Doubtless most parents, on receiving the suggestion, will very cheerfully encourage their children to donate, even though but a dime each, and thus, while helping to alleviate the present distress, also cultivate as a habit earnest, practical sympathy with human suffering.

THE CABOT CR
These stains produce that soft, artistic effect in architecture on which shingles are largely used. Mr. Cabot, who is prominent in the movement for urban beautification, is specifying them on many of his buildings. They are made by mixing colors and blend harmoniously with the natural color of the wood, costing only half the price of shingle stains.
